The Wife's Part?
Capital, Labor—Defined
The "Toddle" Banished
Johnson Investigates

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1921.

Every issue of Liberty Bonds went to a new high record for the year yesterday. The "new high record" is a disgracefully low record, considering the promises made to the little people that put their money in Liberty Bonds and such affairs.

A rich young man, recently dead, left his wife one hundred dollars only. What should be the law in such matters?

Would it not be fair, as one wise man suggests, to give at least one-third of a man's possessions, at death, to his wife, one-third to his children, and let him do as he pleases with one-third?

It is all very well to say "a man may do as he will with his own." But who knows how much of his fortune IS his own, how much due to his wife's patience and help?

And what about the rights of the wife? When she marries she invests her entire "capital," her hope of marrying a decent, grateful man. Her husband takes this hope definitely, and he should incur definite obligations.

One-third, irrevocably, for the wife, would be not too much.

The learned Dr. Crane quotes with earnest approval these lines from the Montreal Star:

"Capital is the labor of the past.

"Labor is the capital of the future."

"Capital and labor, pulling together, create the prosperity of the present."

The statement is interesting, but not complete. Capital is what somebody has been able to extract from the labor of others aided by his own intelligence and self-denial, or sometimes by his own dishonesty.

Labor is the capital of the future, but it is a good deal more than that.

Labor is the life of human beings in the present. Labor is THE PEOPLE, and labor creates the next generation. The treatment that labor receives now—its food, its education, its housing—decides what human beings of the next generation will be.

Therefore, labor, besides being the capital of the future, is the human race of the future. And the human race of the future ought to be considered more important than the capital of the future. (It isn't.)

Capital and labor pulling together, if they DID pull together, would create the prosperity of the present, and drown the hatreds of the past.

The difficulty is that capital pulls for capital, and labor, through compulsion, pulls for labor.

Just now, capital is rejoicing to hear that labor is largely idle, and therefore will lower its demands. A little while ago, labor was rejoicing because the country lacked labor; labor could charge what it pleased, and incidentally could decline to work in return for good pay.

Capital is frozen labor. Labor is HUMANITY, which is the only important thing. Anybody who thinks that capital is the equal of labor, would pull a pocketbook out of the water first and let a child drown in the meanwhile.

Chicago school authorities have denounced the "shimmy" and the "toddle" as dances not proper for school entertainment. The judgment is right as regards the "shimmy," for it represents terpsichorean delirium tremens and moral breakdown.

But the "toddle," which is an imitation of an infant's walk, the sort of dancing that a baby does when its father whistles, is altogether harmless. The "toddle" outlawed with the "shimmy" can sympathize with light beer, which was banished with whiskey—and the whiskey came back wickeder than ever, but the beer didn't.

Hiram Johnson demands an investigation of the "United States military expedition to Siberia." What Senator Johnson demands he is likely to get. His investigation would be interesting. How much of a MILITARY expedition and how much of a BOND COLLECTING expedition was it?

What became of the money, several hundred millions, taken from the pockets of taxpayers, "to help Russia establish democratic government?" Who got those millions, how much of it went to Russia? How much of it got beyond Wall Street? How much, if any, is being spent now in violation of law and decency to maintain in Washington an "embassy" representing Czardom dead and buried, or the exploded Kerensky regime?

The Senate changes its mind and fixes the army at 175,000 instead of 150,000 men. Why the extra 25,000? Would that number of men make any difference in a real war? Could we not immediately recruit or conscript a million, two millions, or five millions, if a serious war began? Why add 25,000 unnecessarily to the 150,000, thus adding a few scores of millions to the expense of government? Instead of 25,000 extra men, why not use the money to train five thousand extra OFFICERS? They really would be worth while, if war came. It takes years to train officers. Not so long to teach an American youth to fight.

$2,000,000 WORCESTER FIRE; INCENDIARY PLOT BLAMED

SHOT DEAD IN IRISH PRISON CAMP

Two Slain by British Concentration Guards; Full Martial Threat for Cork

By International News Service.

London, Jan. 19.—Two Irish civilians in the internment prison at Ballykinlan have been killed by guards, said a dispatch from Dublin today. Dublin Castle officials confirmed news of the killing, but gave no details. The prisoners were shot.

London, Jan. 19.—"Cork must expect to be visited with the full severity of martial law if the shooting of the police continues," is the warning given to citizens of Cork by Major-General Sir E. P. Strickland in a letter to Deputy Mayor Egan.

Replying to a request that he use his influence to secure a reprieve for Joseph Murphy, who was sentenced to death for partisanship in a Cork ambush, the military commander replied:

"Within the past fortnight there have been two dastardly attempts at murder when members of the Royal Irish constabulary have been shot in the streets. One case ended fatally and the other is likely to do so. The present state of affairs in this city cannot be allowed to continue, and severe as they may be, I shall be com-

HELD UP IN REVERE, ROBBED OF $4,200

Allie Finkelstein Says He Was Followed From South Station by Three Bandits

Allie Finkelstein of No. 46 Thornton street, Revere, reported to the police that three men, one armed with a revolver, held him up in front of his home early today and robbed him of $4,200.

Finkelstein said the men, all of whom were young, apparently followed him from the South Station, where he arrived from New York.

The Revere police were inclined to believe that the three men received word from New York that Finkelstein was on his way to Boston from that city.

The men, according to their victim, were on the car in which he rode to Revere, leaving it at the stop before his.

While the first, described as five feet six or seven inches tall, wearing a dark mackinaw coat, and armed with a pistol, held Finkelstein up, the other two rifled his pockets.

When he resisted they punched him until he submitted.

Nos. 2 and 3 were taller than the armed robber, Finkelstein said, all between twenty-one and twenty-three years of age. No. 2 wore a gray coat with dark cap and No. 3 dark coat and dark cap.

Their descriptions were sent to all surrounding cities and towns.

D'ANNUNZIO LEAVES FIUME FOR VENICE

Milan, Jan. 19.—Gabriele d'Annunzio, warrior poet who seized and held Fiume for more than a year in defiance of Italy and Jugo-Slavia, left Fiume today for Venice. A great crowd gave him a farewell demonstration. D'Annunzio said he would rest at Venice, later writing a history of his occupation of Fiume. He has been in ill health recently.

Scene of Great Blaze in Worcester

TWO BIG BUILDINGS RUINED, SCORES PARTLY BURNED

Worcester, Jan. 19.—Fire, which the police suspect was of incendiary origin, destroyed several big business buildings on Main street today, damaged scores of tenement houses and one theatre, drove many families in panic to the street, and caused upward of $2,000,000 damage.

Dozens of firemen and volunteer firemen were injured or suffered from freezing as they fought the flames in a temperature several degrees below zero.

Firemen from Boston, Clinton, Fitchburg, Athol and other cities and towns close by arrived during the forenoon to assist the exhausted fire department of Worcester. The Mason street engine went from Boston.

The greatest damage was to the Knowles Block on Main street, a seven-story brick structure, which was destroyed with a loss of $1,000,000.

Brisk Wind Carries Embers

The fire apparently started in one of the buildings of the Merrifield estate at Nos. 33-37 North Foster street.

Fanned by a brisk wind, the sparks covered the city, reaching the Knowles Building four blocks away and starting scores of roof fires throughout the "island" district.

Minor accidents were frequent as the fire-fighters made their way through dense billows of smoke over pavements coated with six inches of ice and water, and several of the victims were taken to the City Hospital.

Police officials said, when the fire was declared partly under

TWO ALLEGED FORGERS ARE ARRESTED

One Posed as Valet for Theatre Man; Other Comes From Worcester

Two alleged forgers, charged with dropping no less than eighty-five forged checks in Boston and Worcester are under arrest.

One, a young colored man, who victimized big downtown stores and banks with checks drawn on the Old Colony Trust Company, is under arrest in Chicago.

The other, a former secretary of a Worcester manufacturing concern, is under arrest at Concord, N. H.

The arrests were made by Pinkerton detectives.

The negro posed as a valet for a member of a musical company which had been playing in Boston. His checks ranged from $1.90 to $2.85 and were used to buy a complete wardrobe.

Gardner Jackson is the name under which the negro is best known. His check-dropping career in Boston opened on December 9.

Every check was drawn on the Old Colony Trust Company and one of them was cashed with that bank, while two others were cashed at branches of the State Street Trust Company.

Harold L. Bordwin is charged with dropping twenty checks drawn on the Worcester Bank and Trust Company to which the name of William Bangser, secretary of the Bancroft Razor Company of Worcester, was forged. They ranged in value from $10 to $50.

The detectives claim he left Worcester with a woman other than his wife and came to Boston with her. She left him and he fled to Concord, N. H., where he was arrested.

$4,000,000 Shoe Order Placed

An order for nearly $4,000,000 worth of heavy shoes has been received by the Endicott-Johnson Corporation from an American firm, according to an official of the big shoe manufacturing concern today.

He said that he was not at liberty to divulge the name of the buyer, but could say that the deal has been closed, and Endicott-Johnson is to begin making up the order immediately.

An order of this size is seldom heard of in the shoe business, and is thought particularly striking in these times of depression in the industry, with most plants running at around 40 per cent. of capacity.

3 FAMILIES IN DORCHESTER FLEE FIRE

Fire starting from an overheated stove in the shoe shop of Benjamin Alleman drove into the bitter cold three families occupying the three-story apartment house at Nos. 222 and 225 Norwell street, Dorchester, today.

Just above the shoemaker lived Mr. and Mrs. Flavan Dorval and their children, two of whom were at home in bed when the alarm was sounded. All fled to the street for safety.

On the upper floor lived W. P. Calvin, his wife and three children. They also were driven out.

The district is a congested one and for a time panic threatened the neighborhood as the flames spread, but the arrival of police reserves and the firemen, who soon put out the flames ended the excitement. The three families were cared for by neighbors. The damage was $500.

Radio for Suspect in $100,000 Fraud

Chicago, Jan. 19.—Before the steamship Manchuria, now in mid-ocean, reaches Hamburg, Walter Osterle, former officer in the German army, will be removed and placed aboard a ship that will bring him back to Chicago to face charges of using the mails to defraud. Use of the wireless to order Osterle's arrest is expected to prevent him reaching Germany with nearly $100,000 he is alleged to have obtained by fraud.

Osterle's arrest was ordered after Arma Osterle, the Chicago beauty, with whom he eloped in 1920, filed a complaint alleging he had obtained $3,000 belonging to her and $16,000 belonging to her father to finance an agency to import automobiles.

MANY FIREMEN INJURED AT $2,000,000 BLAZE IN WORCESTER

BOSTON FIRE DEPARTMENT RUSHES ASSISTANCE

control, that an investigation would be begun at once as to its origin.

The incendiarism theory was based on the finding of a suitcase filled with inflammable material in the doorway of No. 33 North Foster street, in the heart of a lumber yard and woodworking district.

The building was burning briskly, but the firemen managed to save the suitcase, and it was taken by the police as evidence.

As the curtain of smoke fell over the city, something very close to panic set in among the people, who were alarmed by rumors of anarchistic uprisings.

Reports went rapidly from mouth to mouth that similar fires were devastating Providence, Boston and other big cities, and were part of a plot to introduce chaos and root up the foundations of government.

Deputy Chief of Police McMurray would only say "It was decidedly peculiar so many fires should break out at once in a great city like Worcester" and added that he would begin an investigation at once.

STRUCTURES DESTROYED.

Structures destroyed were:

The Knowles Building, loss $1,500,000 or more.

Buildings on the Merrifield estate at Nos. 23-37 North Foster street, housing the following concerns: Mackin Stephens Machine Works; Hockin Oil Gauge Company; Worcester Gear Works; Beacon Enameling Company; M. & K. Smith Company; Henry Swanson & Sons, cabinet makers; loss, upward of $100,000.

Stores in the W. H. Sawyer buildings across Main street from the Knowles Building. Loss unestimated.

Houses on Portland street, Gold street, Millbury street, Harding street and Lamartine street were set afire by sparks, the damage varying. A partial list of these buildings follows:

Two tenements at No. 29 Ward street.

Dwellings at Nos. 33 and 37 Portland street.

Cottage of Henry Gardner at No. 69 Millbury street.

Bijou Theatre, Millbury and Lamartine street, burns dithrough roof.

Dwellings at Nos. 16, 17, 18, 19, 22 and 27 Amonet street.

Houses at Nos. 1, 17, 18, 23 and 35 Gold street.

House at No. 83 Millbury street.

Factory of Massachusetts Oilless Bearing Company, Burnside court.

Dwellings at Nos. 244 and 241 Harding street.

SCORES OF HOUSES FIRED.

Scores of other houses were fired, but the flames were easily extinguished.

The water tower was used in fighting the spectacular blaze in the Knowles Building for the second time in the history of Worcester.

It was also the second general alarm fire in the history of the city, the first being in 1905.

A police officer discovered sparks in the upper part of the seven-story Knowles block as he was passing, and excitedly turned in an alarm.

That was but a few minutes after the alarm had been given for the fire in the wood-working establishment and lumber yards on North Foster street.

When the hard pressed firemen arrived, the Knowles Building was a mass of flames and within a short time only the brick shell of masonry and steel was left standing.

Even this gave signs of toppling and added a new element of anxiety, as it was feared it would damage adjacent buildings in its fall.

Many of the firemen, both of the Worcester and supporting departments, suffered intensely from the cold, despite the distribution of hot coffee by the Salvation Army and other first aid agencies.

LIST OF INJURED.

James H. Gannon, driving a Clinton fire truck, found when he reached Worcester that his hands were laterally frozen to the wheel and it was necessary to chop the ice away.

A partial list of injured, which grew constantly, is as follows:

James Gannon, Clinton fireman, hands frozen to wheel. Treated on the ground.

Elmer Currier, twelve years old, injured by automobile on fire lines; taken to City Hospital. His name is on the danger list.

James Wheeler, fireman of Engine 3, contusions of back and shock, when wall collapsed. Taken to City Hospital.

Michael Callan, fireman, of No. 3 Arvich avenue, suffering from smoke, gas and exposure at the Knowles building fire. Taken home.

James Flynn, No. 8 Goddard street, a volunteer, both ears frozen; taken home.

Conserza L. Montgomery, No. 31 Clinton street, a volunteer, injury to right shoulder while working at the Knowles Building fire.

Wilfred Vigneau, No. 3 of Ladder 3, hands frozen.

Captain James Doyle of the Worcester Fire Department, injuries to wrist and elbow; taken to the City Hospital.

Besides these, many others were treated for cuts, smoke and frostbite by Police Surgeon Richard Shanahan and assisting physicians.

SEVERAL DARING RESCUES.

There were several daring rescues

Leslie G. Kinkhorn, manager of the Northwar Messenger Service, was trapped in a room on the seventh floor of the Knowles Building, and taken down on the fireman ladder which was coated with ice.

Examples of heroism and kindness were frequent as the people of the threatened residential section larned of the situation.

Many women and children were forced to flee in their night clothing, and were cared for by neighbors. In other cases housewives stubbornly refused to leave their houses, although the fire was afire. One such woman, who spoke no English, insisted on getting her husband's breakfast, saying in her own tongue the fire was the fire department's business. Her confidence was not misplaced, for the house was saved.

Street car traffic was completely halted early this forenoon by the blocking of Main street and the other streets nearby.

Many cellars in the business section were flooded, causing damage which it is still impossible to estimate.

The Worcester Post was one of the principal sufferers, quantities of print paper being water-soaked. The paper found it impossible to print today.

It was also reported that the Worcester Telegram cellar was flooded, although this paper got out extra editions while the fire still raged.

At the Knowles building, where the fire was fiercest, the heat was so intense that even seasoned firemen found it impossible to get close to the structure.

At the same time, a half block away, other firemen were suffering with frozen ears and hands.

All overhead wires were cut as soon as the seriousness of the disaster was realized and during the early morning hours the city was without light, and in some sections without telephone service.

The heat was so intense that it shattered the big plate glass windows of the Park Trust Company, a block away, and virtually every window in the buildings within radius of a block was broken.

Sparks from the burning buildings were carried by the high wind through Greendale, Quinsigamond, starting several fires.

Mayor Peter F. Sullivan was early upon the scene, directing the work of he fire department.

Boston was called upon early to send fire apparatus. Engine 26 of the Mason street house was sent over the road.

The occupants of the Knowles Building were:

S. Marcus Company, Wolkowich Brothers, C. L. Hazes, dentist; J. A. Dunlap, dentist; I. G. Clark, optician; M. A. Cosgrove, dentist; W. H. Newton, dentist; A. B. O'Connell, physician; Ralph A. Carroll, dentist; A. W. Eldridge, dentist; W. L. Chipman, dentist; Massachusetts Construction Company; Federal Engineering Corporation, Worcester Engineering Company, Incorporated; Charles E. Morse, investments; Francis M. Hawson, Mrs. Louise Webb Betts, Fred M. Bailey, music teacher; Eugene Pinchetti; J. H. Martin, dentist; Helen Johnson, hair dresser; Mary J. Kelley; John F. Kinnston, architect; Thomas J. Barrett, dentist; Frances M. Cahill, dentist; William J. Gannon, real estate; Walter F. Smith, insurance; New England Casting Company, Hornblower & Weeks, bankers; Massachusetts Department of Public Works, highway division; E. B. Woods, civil engineer; American Multigraph Sales Company, Norcross Company, builders; Mary H. Chick, dressmaker; Mary A. McCarron, music teacher; Keefe Brothers, contractors; Massachusetts Oilless Bearing Company, W. M. Welch, dentist; International Service Company, Inc.; Henry S. Peck, investments; Mary J. Kelly, chiropodist.

3-Alarm Fire in North End, $35,000 Loss

Fire in the Italian Importing Company building at No. 38 Fulton street, which threatened to spread to surrounding tenement districts, caused loss of $35,000 and slight injury to a fireman. Three alarms were sounded. Imported groceries and foodstuffs were destroyed.

From the rear basement, the fire ran up an elevator shaft to the top floor, swept through the building and broke through the front windows.

When the third alarm was sounded the flames had burst through the roof but were quickly stopped by several lines of hose. Fighting the fire on ladders from Chair alley the men proved difficult and dangerous. Icy formed and showers of broken window glass fell on the firemen. Lad. derman William F. Bourassa was taken to the Relief Hospital, suffering from cuts.

11 Hurt in $200,000 Springfield Fire

Springfield, Jan. 19.—Eleven persons were injured and damage amounting to $200,000 resulted when the plants of Frank Brothers Pape Company, Kaplinger Printing Company and the Hinsdale-Smith tobacco warehouse were gutted by flames.

The H. L. Handy Meat Company, the U. S. Army recruiting station and half a dozen small shops suffered damage by smoke and water.

The fire was the worst in twenty years. It broke out in the basement of the Hinsdale-Smith warehouse Hampden street, swept across as in sides court to the Kaplinger printing plant on Fort street and spread i both directions. Four alarms were sounded.

Lieutenant Michael M. Gallivan and Fireman Robert Blakeslee were seriously injured, Blakeslee fell from the roof of the Kaplinger Company building, breaking a leg, several ribs and suffering internal injuries. Both men were taken to the Marcy Hospital with four other firemen overcome by smoke. Gallivan suffered from smoke and a fall.

Five women were knocked through a plate glass window of the Sarnoff-Irving hat store, Main and Hampden streets, when a feed pipe ripped loose from a high power pump and soaked scores of bystanders.

Police rescued fifteen horses from the H. L. Handy plant and removed office furniture and files from most of the buildings.

Cox Rushes Officers to Probe Worcester Fire

Alarmed by persistent rumors of incendiarism, Governor Channing H. Cox today dispatched two intelligence officers to Worcester to investigate the origin of a series of fires which destroyed two large business blocks, twenty tenement houses, theatres and smaller buildings, threatened the heart of the business district and caused a damage estimated at $2,000,000.

Word early reached the executive chamber that twenty-one fires were burning at once and that the fact that flames simultaneously broke out in widely scattered points excited the suspicion of the Governor, who acted at once. It was explained that high wind, intensified by the flames, had showered the country of the city with firebrands which were undoubtedly responsible for many of the smaller fires, but the fact that some of the fires were reported to be as far as Greendale gave force to the incendiary reports at the State House.

Governor Cox telephoned to Mayor Peter F. Sullivan of Worcester that he was eager to lend whatever State aid was needed and that he planned on hurrying to the scene himself.

DECLARES VETS ARE 'LOAFING ON JOBS'

Alderman Scanlon of Lawrence Opens Fight to Oust Fourteen City Employes

Lawrence, Jan. 19.—A fight to oust fourteen veterans of the Spanish-American and the World Wars employed in the Department of Public Property, started by Alderman Michael F. Scanlon, came to a head before the City Council at its last meeting.

Under the system which has prevailed here the incoming Alderman usually reserved the right to discharge any or all of the employes in his department, and this right has been insisted upon by Scanlon.

The fireworks started with the opening of the meeting. A crowd of friends of the threatened veterans gathered in the hallways of the building and sent word to the Mayor asking that the session be held in the large hall upstairs.

REQUEST REFUSED.

This request was refused, the Mayor stating that the crowds of Lawrence have in the past shown disrespect to the City Council.

When voted down His Honor refused to preside at the meeting and turned it over to Alderman Peter Carr.

Attorney John P. Kane, former Mayor of the city, and a veteran of the Spanish War, started the contest over the dismissal of the veterans as soon as the session was opened to him. He appeared as attorney for the fourteen men.

He denounced the plan of Alderman Scanlon, declaring it violated the law of the State, which gives veterans preference under civil service rules in State positions.

Alderman Scanlon took issue with this, questioning the law protecting the veterans in their posts.

WOULD FILL POSTS.

"It is not that I am opposed to veterans, although if this law stands it means that within five years every public post in the State will be held by a veteran," he said.

"What I do object to is that these men—some of the finest lounging on their jobs. A number of them were drafted and never were within 1,000 miles of the fighting front. I can't get results with such employes in my department."

Replying, Kane declared it "makes no difference whether these men were within 1,000 miles or 100 feet of the firing line. They were honorably discharged from the service of the United States and that is all that the law requires."

Scanlon then declared that "if forced to employ these men it will make two years of unnecessary confusion, for I shall surely fight this matter to the Supreme Court if necessary."

pelled to take drastic measures to make lives of the Crown forces secure from cowardly attacks by assassins in the streets."

Raid and Reprisal Mark Greenwood's Irish Visit

Dublin, Jan. 19.—Sir Hamar Greenwood, Home Secretary for Ireland, today continued his Irish trip to include a visit to Dublin, to see the fruits of the policy by which he hoped to reduce the Sinn Feiners to a state of submission.

Dublin confirms the belief that is entertained throughout Ireland that Greenwood did not come to Ireland on any extraordinary mission, but on ordinary administration duties, which probably means there is to be a more intense coercion under martial law.

The "peace offensive," as the Sinn Feiners called it, has failed, and they are now reckoning upon some new action in behalf of the government. Just what the new plan will be is a matter of speculation, but a leading Sinn Feiner told me today that he had information that the next three months will be the most crying of the present phase of the situation.

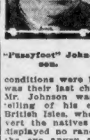
A news report says that military specials raided Forkhill, County Armagh, and arrested twenty-three persons, including a lieutenant of the Irish republican army. Two business houses at Cappawhite were burned by the British in reprisal for the killing of Constable Boyd. Women and children, fearing further attacks, have fled to the country.

GIRL ESCAPES MURDER CHARGE IN PIERCE CASE

Philadelphia, Jan. 19.—Although indicted along with three men on a charge of first degree murder in connection with the slaying of Henry T. Pierce, wealthy manufacturer, Marie "Booth" Rogers, the girl in the case and "pal" of one of the indicted men, will escape trial on that charge, it was stated.

Peter D. Treadway, friend of the girl who, the prosecution will charge was used as a lure, will be prosecuted as the brains of the robbery-murder plot, while the girl and Joseph A. Moss, also under indictment, will be prosecuted as accessories. Marion Elliott, also indicted but still at large, also will be prosecuted for first degree murder, it was announced.

"PUSSYFOOT" JOHNSON TELLS OF DRINK ON SHIP



"Pussyfoot" Johnson.

"They drank more after I asked to them than before," admitted "Pussyfoot" Johnson, prohibition evangelist, arriving from Europe on the steamship Imperator. He was telling of his experiences on the liner when he asked to the passengers and urged them to forswear the cup that cheers and inebriates. He declared conditions were bad, as many felt it was their last chance to get a drink. Mr. Johnson was more cheerful in telling of his experiences in the British Isles, where he tried to convert the natives to prohibition. He displayed no rancor over the loss of the eye angry students put out in England.

EVICTION THREATENED IF TENANTS JOIN "UNION" IS CHARGE

NEW LEASE BANS RENT PROTESTS

Protective Association Files 5 Bills to Check Greed of Boston Landlords

Charges that Boston landlords have brazenly intimidated tenants, infringed upon their legal rights and threatened eviction if they joined any movement or organization seeking relief, were made today by officials of the Massachusetts State Tenants' Protective Association.

Mrs. M. W. Paine Whittemore of No. 104 Queensbury street, secretary of the association, told today how certain Back Bay landlords, in renewing leases, had inserted clauses which forced tenants to waive all rights to join any rent organization, or to take part in any agitation or in any way to influence rent legislation.

"Such high-handed methods are a violation of all standards of law, equity and common decency," added Mrs. Whittemore. "They deprive tenants, compelled to sign such leases, of their constitutional rights and freedom. Other methods have been resorted to by landlords to prevent tenants from joining rent leagues. But in spite of the threats and coercion thousands of men and women have come out into the open to fight not only for their individual rights, but for the rights of the public.

CONDITIONS DEPLORABLE.

"Housing conditions in Boston and the State at large are deplorable. The Massachusetts State Tenants' Protective Association has filed five bills with the Legislature aiming to improve conditions, and to repeal objectionable laws and broaden measures already in operation.

"The association is an amalgamation of local tenants' leagues all over the Commonwealth and has thousands of members. It was formed last November. It already has enrolled the Tenants' Leagues of the Back Bay, Dorchester, Metapan, Jamaica Plain, Quincy, Medford, Worcester, Fall River, Springfield and other points and cordially welcomes any and all neighborhood associations formed to combat rent profiteering and other housing abuses.

BACK BAY SEEKS 5,000.

"The Back Bay Tenants' Association is a very energetic unit in the State association. It is now making a drive for 5,000 members, and the movement for enlarging the parent organization is State wide.

"There is strength in numbers. That's why we are concentrating on enlarging the membership of individual and tenants' leagues. The larger our ranks the greater our influence.

"Corrective measures passed last year don't go far enough in our opinion. For instance, while the bill permitting a tenant in a rent dispute to remain for six months is a step forward, we seek to prevent evictions entirely.

"If the Commission on the Necessaries of Life in its annual report complains that tenants fail to take advantage of the laws and that they could hale landlords into court more often, the commission couldn't have been following the work of our State protective association very carefully, because we have had landlords in court many times. We have fought many cases for oppressed tenants and won.

EXPOSES OWNERS' DECEPTIONS.

"Our association opposed the sprinkler law which calls for installation of costly equipment in apartment houses containing more than ten suites.

"Our association is circulating a petition requesting Mayor Peters to support the latter measure. We have evidence of specific cases in which landlords who, seeking statistics to justify increased rent, have included cost of installing sprinklers, which have not been installed. They simply padded their expense account with anticipated outlay. We saw one statement in which a landlord falsely represented that he had expended $6,000 for a sprinkler system which was not in his house at all. This is a sample of the camouflage used to further rent profiteering. A mass meeting of tenants will be held at 8 o'clock Friday night in Bates Hall, Y. M. C. A. Building, and everybody is invited.

This was the comment today of Albert Coates, speaking of his appointment as associate conductor of the New York Symphony Orchestra.

TWO FAMILIES DRIVEN OUT BY FLAMES

Patrolman Gallishaw Arouses and Saves Sleepers in Burning Brighton Home

Two families were driven to the street by a midnight fire in the three-story frame building at Nos. 72 and 74 Market street, Brighton.

Patrolman Gallishaw of Station 14 discovered the fire, sounded the alarm, aroused the occupants of the building and assisted them to the street with the temperature hovering around zero.

The fire started in the basement under the store of Samuel Goldstein and had spread all over the building as Patrolman Gallishaw was hurrying out the family of Lewis Jason on the third floor. The second floor was occupied by the family of Joseph Wallace.

Despite the rapid spread of the fire, the department under the direction of District Chief James F. MacMahon kept the loss down to $700.

MUST BE READY FOR GREAT FOE, SAYS ADMIRAL

Dunn Declares Present Program Will Give U. S. World's Best Fleet

"America must have a navy large enough to defend it from the most powerful foe," declared Rear Admiral Herbert O. Dunn, commanding the First Naval District.

He was speaking at the thirty-third annual dinner of the Boston Jewelers Club at the Copley-Plaza.

Talking as his topic the proposed naval holiday, Admiral Dunn received prolonged applause from nearly three hundred persons present when he declared that according to the present program the United States would have the best navy in the world by 1924.

"What do we want a great navy for? I think the whole world knows that the United States has no aim at aggression, but simply sees it must protect itself. Not only for protection do we need a big navy, but to carry out the policy of our country.

"The present building program, called the program of 1916, will not be completed until 1924. Certainly we are not going to stop in the middle of the stream. You would not throw away your life insurance policy. The navy is the country's insurance policy.

"The navy would be of no use to us unless it was large enough to protect us against every foe. There are three things which make a nation dominant in the world. One is the greatest merchant marine, another is being a creditor nation, and third, the nation having the greatest navy.

"The United States is too big and too proud a nation to neglect to have an adequate navy."

$25,000,000 Heiress Sues

Countess Cecile de Korwin, seeking her second divorce, and son Stanislaus. Her attorneys say the titled father seeks the child, believing the boy would be "a certified check in his hands for years to come."

Chicago, Jan. 19.—Countess Cecile Young de Korwin has filed suit for a divorce from her titled husband, Chevalier Joseph E. Korwin. She charges desertion. She is the daughter of the late Otto Young, Chicago merchant, and heiress to his $25,000,000 estate. De Korwin was a friend of Austrian royalty, held a commission in the Austrian army during the war and received his title as a heritage from the ancient Polish dynasty.

The divorce suit follows a bitter fight which came up in the Chicago court recently when De Korwin attempted to gain possession of their seven-year-old son, Stanislaus Stephen De Korwin.

The divorce bill stated they were married in Paris on June 22, 1911, and that De Korwin deserted his wife on August 1, 1914. Before their marriage she had been divorced from Lawrence Hayworth, Chicago millionaire.

During the court hearing for the custody of the child Mrs. De Korwin charged that on the date of her marriage she had to make financial settlements with a score or so of De Korwin's common-law wives. These settlements, she said, so depleted her fortune that she became involved in financial difficulties on her return to America.

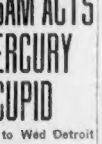
In his petition to get control of the child, De Korwin charged that the countess suffered from an "enormous obesity" and was not a fit person to raise the boy. She won the first court clash, however, but the case was settled. The judge ruled that the boy should remain with her for the time being.

The case was delayed when lawyers informed the judge that they believed a settlement would be reached out of court. Her attorneys declared that De Korwin's desire to get the child was actuated by the belief that the boy would be "a certified check in his hands for years to come."

UNCLE SAM ACTS AS MERCURY TO CUPID

Brockton Girl to Wed Detroit Musician After Courtship Which Started by Mail

Brockton, Jan. 19.—Uncle Sam played Mercury to Cupid in aiding the love match which will lead Miss Alice Helen Dombrosky, prettily and accomplished cornetist to the altar of the Church of Our Lady of Ostrabrama, Saturday evening. She will become the bride of Joseph Augustine, a musician of Detroit.



Dombrosky.

The mails started the affair. Augustine saw a picture of his bride-to-be in a local paper giving an account of an entertainment at which Miss Dombrosky was the feature.

Right there Cupid began getting in his fine work. Augustine wrote to the girl but letters proved unsatisfactory and several weeks ago the Detroit man came here to press his suit.

The bride-to-be is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dombrosky, of No. 17a North Montello street. The couple will live in Detroit.

O'Callaghan Silent About Future

New York, Jan. 19.—Donal O'Callaghan, Lord Mayor of Cork, who entered the United States as a "seaman" so that he might testify before a committee investigating Irish conditions, refused today to say whether he would depart unostentatiously for home by the same route.

"It's all in the hands of my lawyers," O'Callaghan said, declining to comment on the State Department's decision that he entered the United States illegally and must depart.

"Will you testify further before the committee at Washington?" he was asked.

"I may and I may not; you'll have to see my lawyers," was his reply.

5,000,000 OUT OF WORK IN BRITAIN

Labor Leader Demands Peace With Russia to Avert World Calamity

By International News Service.

London, Jan. 19.—Unemployment is no longer a national problem; it is a world problem that is shaking the foundation of the present social and economic order, in the opinion of Robert Williams, the militant chief of the Transport Workers' Union and one of the best-known labor leaders in Europe.

Williams declared today that 2,500,000 persons are dependent in Great Britain through unemployment and that something must be done at once if a catastrophe is to be averted.

There will be a general congress of labor delegates on January 27, when the advisability of a general strike to enforce government action will be discussed," said Williams.

"The Direct Action Council will be advised to tell the government that it must provide work or maintenance for the idle.

"Unemployment is not a problem that affects only Great Britain. It is a sore spot throughout the whole world. It is raising alarm everywhere.

"The purchasing power of the peoples of eastern and central Europe must be restored by extensions of credit. Peace must be made with Russia. The home markets must be stimulated. And, above all, work must be provided and the standard of living of the workers must be elevated.

"The Council of Action was able to prevent the government from going to war against Russia, but it has not been an easy task to compel peace. The government's unwillingness to make peace with Russia has intensified the unemployment situation.

"A normal rate of exchange cannot be re-established because we cannot export our products to America since America overproduced similar products.

"If Germany should pay the British claims for damages by goods it would only intensify unemployment." If Great Britain should pay her debts to the United States in goods it would increase unemployment in America.

"The world capitalist organizations are being shaken to their very foundations by the present conditions left by the war and it is a matter of serious doubt if the precarious equipoise of capitalism can be maintained."

Owner of $1,400,000 Owed by U. S. Sought

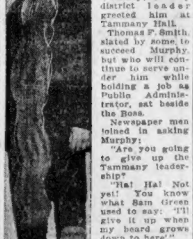
Washington, Jan. 19.—The United States owes $1,400,000 to Russia, but is unable to determine to whom the money should go, the State Department announced today, commenting on a report handed out by the publicity department of the French Foreign Office stating that this money belonged to General Wrangel.

The State Department explained that during the war the United States Shipping Board had taken over some vessels belonging to the Russian volunteer fleet valued at $1,400,000. It had been arranged to pay this money to Kerensky, but his government fell. The State Department has offered to pay the money to Ambassador Bakhmeteff, who came to the United States as the Kerensky representative, and who is still recognized by this government, but he refused to accept the money.

The United States acknowledges its debt, but does not know to whom the money should go, as the vessels secured were owned by a Czarist corporation, the department explains.

MURPHY TO QUIT WHEN BEARD IS AT KNEES

Tammany Leader, Back in New York From Vacation, Denies Retiring



New Murphy will look when he quits Tammany Hall.

New York, Jan. 19.—Tanned by golf at French Lick Springs, Ind., Charles F. Murphy returned yesterday from a three weeks' vacation.

Nearly every district leader greeted him at Tammany Hall.

Thomas F. Smith, slated by some to succeed Murphy, but who will continue to serve under him while holding a job as Public Administrator, sat beside the Boss.

Newspaper men joined in asking Murphy:

"Are you going to give up the Tammany leadership?"

"Ha! Ha! Not yet! You know what Mark Twain used to say: 'I'll give it up when my beard grows down to here.'"

Mr. Murphy gleefully pointed to his knees and added:

"And it hasn't started growing yet."

Asked of his forthcoming trip to Europe, he said:

"Europe? Too stormy! Mayor-elect Too early! No! I am too healthy to need to go away!"

He certainly looked ten years younger than when he departed for the Springs. A reporter suggested:

"Maybe if we keep on printing Murphy wants to quit we will hit it right home time."

"Maybe you're not right this time."

"Did the police situation hurry you back?"

"No; I am not concerning myself about anything but Tammany Hall, and I shall continue to devote myself to it."

"What about the conference at French Lick with Thomas F. Taggart, George Brennan, Roger Sullivan and others for a reorganization of the Democratic party for 1924?"

"Didn't see Tom, George or Ed. They were not there."

TELLS HOW MRS. BERENTSEN WAS FOUND

Husband Trailed Bellboy From New York Postoffice With Mail to Her Hotel

MRS. RICHARD M. BERENTSEN

Mrs. Richard M. Berentsen, wife of a wealthy carpet manufacturer of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., for whom a search has been conducted in Massachusetts and two other States since she disappeared from her home last Saturday, has been found in a New York hotel by her husband, and today was resting at her home in Mt. Vernon.

Miss Berly M. Berentsen of No. 227 Harvard street, Cambridge, her sister-in-law, with whom Mrs. Berentsen's two sons live, was notified by telephone that the woman had been found.

A letter containing a check, addressed "in care of general delivery, New York Postoffice," was the means by which Mrs. Berentsen was traced. In a letter to her husband she had asked him to send the check in that manner.

Upon receipt of the letter, he notified one of the detectives who have been at work on the case and the detective advised the husband to do as she requested and watch the general delivery window of the postoffice. This he did and was rewarded when a bellboy from the Hotel Lucerne, No. 201 West Seventy-ninth street, New York City, called at the window for the letter. The husband then followed the boy to the hotel.

"I was very much surprised that hotel officials had not notified me my wife was there," said Berentsen, "but I was told that none of them had read anything about the police of three States looking for her.

"I brought my wife home in an automobile. She is in a highly nervous state, under care of a physician.

"I had only recently brought her from a sanitarium at Stamford, Ct., where she had been treated for two years for a nervous breakdown. She was anxious to visit our two boys, but I did not believe her condition warranted the trip."

In New York city Mrs. Berentsen first went to a hotel, where she spent Saturday night. She was unable to pay her hotel bill, but deposited her watch as security. She then went to the Hotel Lucerne, and on Monday wrote the letter to her husband requesting funds, which led to her discovery.

STRIKE TIES UP $2,284,000 IN CITY BUILDING

Many Other Millions of Private Structural Work Affected by Walkout

Nearly $3,000,000 worth of building for the city and unestimated millions for private contractors will be tied up indefinitely by the strike of laborers and mechanics scheduled to begin this afternoon at 5 o'clock.

All building operations throughout the greater city where the contractors attempt to enforce the 90 cents an hour scale proposed by the Building Employers' Association, will be affected. All members of the United Building Trades Council will join the strikers.

Estimates made public this afternoon by officials of the Department of Public Buildings and the school department put the value of the city's building work affected by the walkout at $2,284,000.

Among the structures under the Public Building Department, work on which is to be halted, is the Hyde Park Municipal Building, the cost of which is put at $254,000. The excavation has been completed and all is in readiness for pouring the concrete.

Another structure on which work will be held up indefinitely is the Charles street jail annex and hospital, $250,000, and which is said to be within six months of completion.

The alterations on the Suffolk County Courthouse, amounting to $43,430, also will be delayed.

Under the supervision of the school department, the following buildings will be tied up:

The new Dearborn street school, Roxbury, $153,000; the new school at Ashley and Blackinton streets, Orient Heights, East Boston, $137,000, and the addition to the Michael Angelo School Charter street, $247,000.

In addition to these, the School Department had intended calling for bids February 11 for the new Boston Latin School in the Fenway, opposite the High School of Commerce. These bids, it is now thought probable, will be deferred until the strike is settled one way or the other, as it is believed that contractors will be unwilling to make bids until the wage scale is settled. The appropriation for this structure is $1,900,000.

According to the statement of union leaders and employers between 15,000 and 20,000 workers will quit when the strike goes into effect.

WILLS ACTRESS $60,000; WIFE GETS $100

Joseph J. Ryan Leaves Bulk of Estate to 'Dear' Friend 22 Years Old

New York, Jan. 19.—The bulk of the estate of the late Joseph J. Ryan, son of Thomas Fortune Ryan, is left to Miss Dorothy Lucille Whiteford, of this city, an actress, twenty-two years old, and described as Mr. Ryan's only and "dear" friend.

Miss Whiteford will get about $60,000 of the total estate which is valued at $90,000.

This was disclosed here today when Mr. Ryan's will was filed for probate.

"My dearest," said Mrs. John H. Whiteford today, "had known Mr. Ryan for some time. She was his dear friend, in fact his only friend. She was with him when he died. She was never employed by Mr. Ryan but was a sort of confidential secretary to him."

From another source it was learned that Miss Whiteford, who lives with her mother, father and five sisters, is an actress and for a year played in New York in "The Royal Vagabond."

Mr. Ryan left only $100 to his widow, Nanzie Morris Ryan, explaining that "ample provision had been made for her support and the support of the children during her lifetime by a separation agreement entered into between us dated the 8th of May, 1915."

Miss Whiteford is at present in Florida. Her father, John H. Whiteford, is a manufacturer of toys.

Mrs. Mango is shown wearing the necklace, which would have represented a king's ransom in the old days.

PALMER UNDER ATTACK BY UNTERMYER

New York Lawyer Hints at Mortifying Scandals to Be Investigated

New York, Jan. 19.—Attorney-General A. Mitchell Palmer, it was believed here today, will reply to charges made by Samuel Untermyer in a speech here last night. Untermyer made a scathing attack on the Department of Justice and the office of alien property custodian which Palmer held before being named Attorney-General. The Attorney-General's activity against building combinations exposed by the Lockwood committee, for which Untermyer is counsel, was the basis of the attack.

"There has never been a governmental department, national or State, so urgently in need of immediate and painstaking investigation as are those of the alien property custodian and the Department of Justice," Untermyer declared. "Our national honor is involved.

"I have no direct legal evidence, but if a fraction of what comes to me is true an investigation will disclose to the world a series of the most mortifying scandals that has ever befallen our country."

Ask Mayor to Fill Library Shelves

Several hundred letters have been sent to Mayor Peters by school children of Boston pleading for more library books.

Rows upon rows of empty shelves in the branches and reading rooms in the congested parts of the city mock the youngsters, who daily crowd these rooms in search of knowledge.

This is but one phase of a deplorable situation into which Boston is gradually drifting because its library facilities have not kept pace with the demands made upon them, and which threatens to dislodge the Hub from its eminence as having the greatest free library system in the country.

NOT ENOUGH TO GO AROUND.

Here are extracts from a few letters sent to the Mayor by children in East Boston:

"My Dear Mr. Mayor:

"I am one of the frequent visitors at the East Boston Public Library and at the present time there are not enough books for so many children and many times we cannot get the books which we want. Will you please set aside some money to buy more books for the children of East Boston?"

"My Dear Mr. Mayor:

"The East Boston Library has not enough duplicates of books for the boys and girls of East Boston. I have tried many times for the same book and haven't got it yet. Will you please get more books for the children of East Boston?"

"My Dear Mr. Mayor:

"I do not think that there is a sufficient number of reference and story books in the East Boston branch of the Boston Public Library."

FINDS EMPTY SHELVES.

"Dear Mr. Mayor:

"Sometimes I would go to the library to get a book for my mother. I would find no books suitable for the elderly people to read. Some nights I would go to the library and find empty shelves staring at me.

"When I have a home lesson, which requires an encyclopedia, I would go to the library and there I would find that volume was missing or since it was an old edition the thing wanted would not be in it."

"My Dear Mr. Mayor:

"We should like to have plenty of fairy tales, books about mechanical subjects for the boys and about needlecraft for the girls; books to help us in our studies, such as geography, science, hygiene and grammar; books about nature and outdoor life; books about work and play; books written in easy language for the younger children and for people just learning to speak English."

WANT BOOKS ON AMERICANISM.

"My dear Mr. Mayor:

"We children are growing up to be citizens of the United States and we would like to have more books on Americanism so that we will be better citizens."

In six years Boston has not added a single branch or reading room to its facilities for supplying books to the reading public. There are still only thirty-two branches and reading rooms.

Not in three years has the personnel of the library system shown any increase. There are 256 positions on the library staff which serves the public. Of these, twelve have been vacant for some time, because the salaries paid are not adequate to attract the necessary competent persons.

For three years, until recently, one of the most important departments of the library has been without a chief, because no one with the necessary ability would take the position for the salary offered. It is now occupied by a man whose independent income enabled him to do the work without consideration of the salary paid.

ONE CITY AHEAD OF BOSTON.

Already at least one other city in the United States has stepped ahead of Boston in equipment for serving the public. This other city owns most of the buildings in which its branches are housed, whereas Boston has to pay high rentals for many of its most important branches, thus reducing its ability to provide facilities in other directions.

That the people of Boston are awakening to the precarious position of one of the mainstays of the city's great educational system is evidenced, not only by the flow of letters to the Mayor, but by action taken by social, civic and educational organizations to impress upon city authorities the need of more books.

A meeting was held at the Boston City Club under the auspices of the Boston Chamber of Commerce Committee on Americanization.

MRS. PEETE ON TRIAL ACCUSED AS SLAYER

Charged With Murder of Denton, Wealthy Miner, in California

Los Angeles, Jan. 19.—"I am ready for my trial and anxious to have it over with. I have not the slightest feeling of fear. Nothing has shaken my confidence that I will be acquitted."

With these words, Mrs. Louise Peete was escorted this morning from the county jail to the courtroom of Superior Judge Willis, where her trial on the charge of having murdered Jacob C. Denton, wealthy mining man, was begun.

The streets outside the court were jammed with great crowds that surged back and forth as deputy sheriffs and policemen tried to keep traffic moving.

Mrs. Peete's husband, Richard G. Peete of Denver, who has visited his wife daily since she was placed in jail, October 21, was at her side today as the proceedings started.

"I do not ask for pity or sympathy. I only ask to be treated fairly."

This was the attitude of the beautiful and enigmatic woman who is the central figure in one of the most sensational cases ever tried on the Pacific coast. She professed to have only one hope in mind—that she be set free soon to join her husband and little girl, Betty, four years old.

Following the discovery of Denton's body in a secret crypt in his palatial home, September 23 last, District Attorney Thomas Lee Woolwine, assisted by deputies, has devoted much effort to the collection of evidence against Mrs. Peete. Her past has been carefully examined. Investigators employed by the State have branded her an adventuress with a long, checkered career.

Haverhill, Jan. 19.—With a part of a heifer's rib grafted on his spine, fourteen-year-old Lawrence J. Croston, son of former Councilman Frank J. Croston, of Ferry street, Bradford, is learning to walk.

He underwent an operation at the Massachusetts General Hospital several months ago that engaged the attention of the entire medical fraternity of this section.

The boy had been a sufferer from hip trouble for years. A diseased section of his spine was removed and a piece of a heifer's rib grafted in its place.

FORDNEY TARIFF BILL FACING DEFEAT

Democratic Leaders Say It Can't Be Passed at Present Session of Congress

By International News Service.

Washington, Jan. 19.—The Fordney emergency tariff will not be passed at this session, it was predicted by Democratic leaders of Congress. Senator Penrose, Republican, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said he would "try to have the tariff made the 'unanimous business' of the Senate."

"But there are the appropriation bills, he added.

Penrose first opposed the bill as it was passed by the House. Then he issued a statement in which he agreed to support it "with modifications." When the bill was reported by him from his committee the form in which it came from the House was much altered.

The Senate resumed today consideration of the District of Columbia appropriations bill. The Senate has less than a month and a half in which to dispose of thirteen appropriations bills.

Democratic leaders claim to have a trump with which to checkmate the Republican plan to choke off the filibuster against the proposed tariff bill.

Unless they are permitted to discuss the tariff bill fairly and impartially, they may talk about the appropriation bills long enough to make their passage doubtful.

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

Try this! Brush Sage Tea and Sulphur Compound through your hair, taking one strand at a time.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. At little cost you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite and not a medicine. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—Advertisement.

STOMACH TROUBLES ARE DUE TO ACIDITY

Tells Safe, Certain, Speedy Relief For Acid Indigestion.

So-called stomach troubles, such as indigestion, gas, sourness, stomach-ache and inability to retain food are in probably nine cases out of ten simply evidence that excessive acidity of acid is taking place in the stomach, causing the formation of sour and acid indigestion.

Gas distends the stomach and causes that full, oppressive, burning feeling sometimes known as heartburn, while the acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach. The trouble lies entirely in the excess development or secretion of acid.

To stop or prevent this souring of the food contents of the stomach and to neutralize the acid, and make it bland and harmless, a teaspoonful of bisurated magnesia, a good and effective corrector of acid stomach, should be taken in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water after eating or whenever gas, sourness or acidity is felt. This sweetens the stomach and neutralizes the acidity in a few moments and is a perfectly harmless and inexpensive relief.

An antacid, such as Bisurated Magnesia, which can be obtained from any druggist in either powder or tablet form, soaking the stomach to do its work properly without the aid of artificial digestives. Magnesia comes in several forms, so be certain to ask for and take only Bisurated Magnesia, which is especially prepared for the above purpose.—Advertisement.

RECTOR'S HERO SON ACCUSED OF FORGERY

Aged Washington Minister Will Go to Los Angeles to Aid Boy

Washington, Jan. 18.—Another after-the-war tragedy came to light in Washington today. The Rev. Patrick Murphy, rector of the Episcopal Church of St. Michael's and All Angels, learned that his soldier-hero son is in jail in Los Angeles, charged with forgery. Dr. Murphy had been searching for him for three months.

The son, Harold T. Murphy, was formerly expert photographer for the Department of Agriculture and more recently a cameraman for a large motion picture company. The venerable clergyman said:

"I will give up my work here and go to him at once. Harold may be technically guilty, but he is not to blame. He went over the top in the Argonne, at St. Mihiel and at Verdun, and he was gassed, gassed and shell-shocked. He was never the same after returning from France.

"Before the war he was cheerful, always seeking to do some one a favor. When he came back he was sullen and morose, and resentful of the smallest requests. He needs me now and I shall go to him."

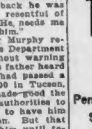
After the war, young Murphy resumed his work with the Department of Agriculture, but shortly thereafter went West. The last his father heard from him was that he had passed a worthless check for $100 in Tucson, Ariz. The clergyman made good the amount and wired the boy, intending to have him placed under observation. But that was the last heard of him until today. The aged cleric declared:

"Of course I shall make amends to those whom he may have wronged."

DANCER, LOSING THREE PARTNERS, SEEKS WIFE

Worcester, Jan. 19.—Life is just one partner after another, according to "Danny" Duggan, professional dancer, whose partners have developed the annoying habit of getting married—to other men.

Three times "Danny's" act has been wrecked through matrimony, and he has about decided the only way to keep a good dancer is to marry her himself.



Dorothy Luce.

Duggan is looking for a new assistant, following receipt of information to the effect that his latest partner, Dorothy Luce of New York, has married Kenneth Merrill, said to be wealthy.

One of his earliest partners was Grace Stone, who married a Mr. Foster of Providence, son of a prominent jeweler of that city.

Later Miss Grace Murphy, another partner, married the son of Congressman Samuel W. Winslow, whose marriages.

And now Dorothy is married.

HINGHAM PASTORS TO PUT YOUTHS IN PULPITS

Young people of America are urged to turn back to the religion of their colonial forefathers in a call issued today by Rev. Houghton Page, pastor of the First Parish (Unitarian) of Hingham, oldest church in continuous service in the United States. Mr. Page is the organiser of "Young People's Week," Sunday in Unitarian churches and during the week the Young People's Religious Union.

Rev. H. Page

The call announces that, according to program, next week will be known as "Young People's Week," and in many of the Unitarian churches throughout the country regular ministers will resign their pulpits for the day to one of the youthful leaders in the congregation.

WOMAN ROUTS BANDITS IN REVOLVER DUEL

G.O.P. "Lied," Says White of Kansas

"The Republican party lied to the irreconcilable foes of the League of Nations to get their votes," declared William Allen White, Kansas editor and political leader, in a lecture at the English High School.

"The whole campaign was a tremendous joke. I speak as one who helped to draw up the Republican platform.

"The Republicans rejected the league, but were for an association of nations. The actual result of the two platforms would be just the same."

Mr. White declared politics must be purged of professional politicians, whom he likened to the money changers in the temple of old. His lecture was first of a series arranged by the Boston Trade Union College.

4,000,000 ASKED TO LAY OFF 1 DAY WEEKLY

Pennsylvania Railroad Will Suspend 800,000 Unless Employes Agree

Pittsburgh, Jan. 19.—Unless every one of the four million employes of the Pennsylvania Railroad agrees to lay off one day weekly, a 20 per cent reduction will be made in the working force of the entire system.

Crews that have heretofore been operating what is known as single trains, in the future will double up—that is one crew will do the work that two crews have done heretofore. The official personnel of the system will be reduced 50 per cent.

These three orders have gone out over the Pennsylvania Railroad system. A census is being taken of employes in this district, who are asked to volunteer to lay off one day a week.

REPORT WAR IS RENEWED IN RUSSIA

Copenhagen Hears "Whites" and "Reds" Are Fighting in the West

London, Jan. 19.—Fighting has again broken out in Western Russia, according to an Exchange Telegraph from Copenhagen today.

"White" Russians are reported to be operating in the regions of Slutsk, Minsk and Borisov, near the Lithuanian frontier.

The Exchange Telegraph correspondent at Copenhagen states that the Red Russians have declared a state of siege at Minsk and that an attack by the Bolshevik troops is expected soon.

There has been no previous news of any concentrating of "White" Russian (anti-Bolshevik) forces on the Russo-Lithuanian frontier, but it was understood that Poland was maintaining strong masses of troops in that region.

The original Russian drive on Poland began in the Pripet marshes district. The Russians not only penetrated Poland, but passed through the southern portion of Lithuania.

Agents of the British Foreign Office in the Baltic states have been sending in reports that the Soviet was massing troops along the frontiers of Lithuania and Poland, and that an attack was feared.

KERENSKY'S ASSEMBLY OPPOSES WAR ON SOVIETS

Paris, Jan. 19.—Condemning General Hoffman's plan for a Franco-German alliance to fight the Soviets, the Russian constitutional assembly in a formal resolution flatly charged that the proposed intervention in Russia is only an attempt by the allies to Balkanize Russia by opening up the Czar's former empire to the exploitation of western money kings.

The conference passed a resolution condemning the Japanese invasion of Siberia.

OLD ENGLISH RECIPE FOR CATARRH, CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES

If you know of some one who is troubled with Catarrhal Deafness, head noises or ordinary catarrh cut out this formula and hand it to them and you may have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. In England scientists for a long time past have recognized that catarrh is a constitutional disease and accordingly requires constitutional treatment.

Sprays, inhalers and nose douches are liable to irritate the delicate air passages and force the disease into the middle ear, which frequently means total deafness, or else the disease may be driven down the air passages towards the lungs, which is usually as dangerous. The following formula, which is used extensively in the damp English climate, is a constitutional treatment and should prove especially efficacious to sufferers here who live under more favorable climatic conditions.

Secure from your druggist 1 ounce of Parmint (Double strength). Take this home and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. This will often bring quick relief from distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and hearing improve as the inflammation in the eustachian tubes is reduced. Parmint used in this way acts directly upon the blood and nerve centers of the system and has a tonic action that helps to obtain the desired results. The preparation is easy to make, costs little and is pleasant to take. Every person who has catarrh or head noises or is hard of hearing should give this treatment a trial.

"They WORK while you sleep"

Cascarets

You are constipated, bilious, and what you need is one or two Cascarets tonight sure for your liver and bowels. Then you will wake up wondering what became of your dizziness, sick headache, bad cold, or upset, gassy stomach. No griping—no inconvenience. Children love Cascarets, too. 10, 25, 50 cents.

"DANDERINE"

Girls! Save Your Hair! Make It Abundant!

Immediately after a "Danderine" massage, your hair takes on new life, lustre and wondrous beauty, appearing twice as heavy and plentiful, because each hair seems to fluff and thicken. Don't let your hair stay lifeless, colorless, plain or scraggly. You, too, want lots of long, strong, beautiful hair.

A 35-cent bottle of delightful "Danderine" freshens your scalp, checks dandruff and falling hair. This stimulating "beauty-tonic" gives to thin, dull, fading hair that youthful brightness and abundant thickness—All druggists!

Are you having trouble with your skin?

If you are suffering from eczema, ringworm, or some similar itching, burning eruption, try Resinol Soap and Ointment. See how quickly this gentle treatment stops the itching and cools the inflamed irritated surface.

Don't hesitate—there is nothing in the Resinol products to injure the tenderest skin, as hundreds of letters from satisfied users testify. At all druggists.

EVANGELIST IS APPEALING TO REASON

Rev. Mr. Post, Conducting Campaign Here, Won't Imitate Sunday's Tactics

Rev. Edward Hilton Post of Bath, Me., who is conducting a revival at the First Presbyterian Church at Berkeley street and Columbus avenue, finds the appeal to reason more powerful in gaining converts than the appeal to the emotions.

He says he is temperamentally averse to theatricalism in the pulpit himself, but does not condemn it in preachers of the Billy Sunday variety, who have the personality to use it.

"No matter what a revivalist's tactics, our purposes are all the same," adds the Maine evangelist.

Rev. Isaac Ward, pastor of the church, is assisting him. Rev. Mr. Ward was for three years with Rev. Billy Sunday in his whirlwind tour of the country.

Incidentally, Rev. Mr. Ward and Rev. Mr. Post have been close friends since childhood. They lived in the same neighborhood in Jersey City when children, went to the same Sunday school and drummed about.

Then they parted and saw each other but a few times in thirty years.

Now they are co-operating in a campaign to save sinners and keep people from going wrong.

DOESN'T USE SLANG.

"I never use any slang in my evangelistic sermons or as the pastor of my Methodist church in Bath," said the Rev. Mr. Post. "Neither do I resort to the bombastic or sensational means of trying to reach people.

"Of course, I gesticulate and sometimes talk rather loudly, but I don't jump on any tables or pianos or stand on my head. That method may be all right for Billy Sunday. He is successful at it and that is the best proof of its efficacy. But to be sensational a man must be especially adaptable to that method.

"My method has always been to appeal to the reasoning power of a person. I try to make my appeal so that any one can follow my line of thought. Sensational methods may be all right to arouse a person's emotions and temporarily lead them to promise to go to church and lead a Christian life.

MUST BE CONVINCING.

"But the sermon must carry a message, something to think about and which will convince one on the doubtful side of the fence which path to take to joy and happiness. Some emotion is all right. When a person hears a beautiful piece by a symphony orchestra and completely forgets his surroundings, then is when tears of gratitude may come to the eyes. So it is when a person has been led through logical reasoning of the goodness of God and the evil of the devil the tears of gratitude may drop and a determination be resolved to do better.

"Some sensational evangelists do nothing more than arouse the emotions and in many cases they are successful in gaining converts. But the test comes when the convert is to live up to his or her resolution and go to church and live a Christian life. And that is the time that a message of lasting appeal is the safest method to employ.

WOULD ADVERTISE.

"I am a firm believer in advertising in the newspapers. Churches are beginning to realize that advertising their services in the press is the proper thing to do. It must be brought to the attention of people when and where church services are to be held. I would like to see a church take a half page or full page of advertising once in a while to let the community know that the church is open and ready to receive new members.

"How does an evangelist go about gaining converts? When I use to visit a town in Texas or the Middle West, I would get together some church people and map out a campaign. Several committees would be formed, each with a captain. Each committee would have its district to canvass.

"If there were any factories in the town, I would go and address the employes and sometimes, where feasible, pass around announcements of a meeting.

"The next thing was to have a real, worth-while message for them when they came to the meeting. I found I was more successful when I gave a message that could be taken away and thought over. Then came the problem of the local minister to keep the people going to church. That is why I believe that every evangelist must have the experience of conducting a church and every pastor must be something of an evangelist.

"For after the evangelist has left town the local ministers must find a means of keeping the converts within the fold. The evangelist aims first at the church members to get them to be more regular in attendance. Then what we call backsliders, who drift away from the church and then the out-and-out sinner."

Revival meetings are being held every night except Saturdays at the First Presbyterian Church. Rev. Ward and Post take turns in preaching the sermon.

Next Sunday afternoon will be "Trail Hitters Reunion," and all of the men and women converted by Billy Sunday are invited to attend. Next Wednesday will be young people's night. Rev. Mr. Post will leave for Bath on January 28 and Rev. Mr. Ward will wind up the campaign the following Sunday.

50,000 WOMEN FAST TO AID HOOVER FUND

New York, Jan. 19.—Fifty thousand women planned to go without food today, the saving of food by their fasting to be devoted to the starving children of eastern Europe who are being cared for by the European Relief Council, of which Herbert Hoover is chairman. Many members of women's clubs have pledged themselves to omit one meal and others have agreed to limit themselves to the "Hoover menu" of bread and cocoa.

North Adams, Jan. 19.—Roy Leon Smith of the North Adams Normal School has been chosen president of the City Teachers' Association which has just been formed.

Slangless Evangelist Favors Advertising

EDWARD HILTON POST

"As an evangelist I have never used slang, sensationalism or bombast.

"My method has always been based on an appeal to reason.

"A message of lasting appeal is the safest message for a revivalist. It gives the people something to take away.

"Every pastor should be something of an evangelist; every evangelist should have a pastor's experience.

"I believe in church advertising in newspapers."

—Evangelist Edward Hilton Post, now in Boston.

BOSTON MEN TO HELP HOOVER SAVE KIDDIES

Committees Representing All Trades and Professions to Sell Certificates

Certificates at ten dollars each, certifying that the holder has saved the life of one starving European child, are to be sold by the Hoover European Relief Council through a score or more committees representing every trade and profession in the city.

Through these "invisible guest" certificates, the relief council hopes to raise the bulk of the $400,000 yet to be subscribed in Massachusetts before the State has completed its goal of a million dollars.

The organization of the sub-committee in the various stores, mercantile establishments and factories is now under way. Although the length of the campaign is indefinite, a strenuous effort is to be made to complete the State's quota to this worthy cause within the next two or three weeks.

The largest individual campaign will no doubt be waged by the department store owners and employes, who, through the retail trade board of the Chamber of Commerce, have set aside the week of January 24 to 29 as "Invisible Guest Week."

During that week the drive among the employes will be enhanced by a selling campaign to the customers. The certificates will be sold by the store clerks from decorated booths scattered through the stores.

CHARGES RICH IMPOSE ON AID SOCIETY

Legal Organization Has Outlived Usefulness for Poor, Says Mrs. Stevens

Mrs. Susan Evans Stevens of Boston, who has filed a bill with the Legislature to abolish the Boston Legal Aid Society, of which Charles E. Ruckeman is president, explains her action on the ground that this organization is no longer doing the work that it set out to do in helping the poor in legal matters.

"We have found out in many instances that the organization has outgrown its usefulness as an agent to help the indigent in legal advice," stated Mrs. Stevens.

"It is charged that the society has been helping people who have no right, as far as their ability to pay for legal services is concerned, to obtain the services of the organization without pay.

"The primary purpose of the society is to help people who cannot afford legal fees. When persons ride in its office in high-power automobiles, dressed in diamonds and rich garments, to get legal advice when they can well afford to get it elsewhere and pay for it, it is about time to abolish the organization."

RUSSIA WILL ALLOW VANDERLIP TO RETURN

Moscow (By Wireless to Berlin), Jan. 19.—Washington D. Vanderlip, the American promoter, who secured the Kamchatka concession for an American syndicate, wishes to return to Moscow for further negotiations, according to information given out today by the Soviet government. It was announced that the government is willing to admit Vanderlip to the country, but is not inclined to do business with the United States on the basis of a makeshift arrangement.

SLAYER OF SWEETHEART MAY GET LIFE SENTENCE

St. Louis, Jan. 19.—Albert Ellis, twenty-one years old, was found guilty of murder in the first degree today. He was charged with slaying his former sweetheart, Edna Ellis, eighteen years old, a stenographer.

The jury recommended a sentence of life imprisonment. Miss Ellis was found with her throat cut in a vacant lot near her home on the morning of November 5. Ellis in a signed confession to the police said he committed the crime because the girl had broken their engagement.

Market Starts Strong and Improves During Morning; Mixed Movement on Curb

Prices were higher in Boston when the exchange opened and the morning was marked by further improvement. The price range was narrow on the whole and trading of about the same volume as before this week. The local market reflected New York. Coppers had a better tone but were not more active. Small gains were made by Boston & Maine, New Haven, United Shoe, Venture, Carson Hill, National Leather, Swift & Co., Gray & Davis and North Butte.

Among stocks to sustain small losses were American Woolen preferred, Boston Elevated and Libby.

CURB TREND WAS MIXED.

The Curb opened with a mixed price movement, but at the start there were more stocks up than down.

Early leaders were Boston & Montana, and Eureka. Strong issues at the opening included Cascade, Crystal, Eureka South Holly, Mutual, Randolph, Ophir and Texana. Among weak ones were Albany Divide, Allied Mining, Bagdad, Boston & Montana, Heela Divide and United Verde Extension. The market was quiet.

ANACONDA LED THE MINES TODAY

Sells at Its Year's Highest; Steels, Motors and Equipments in the Advance

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor

Stocks were strong in New York at noon, with coppers a feature. They made the most improvement in the second hour. Steels, equipments, motors, tires and specialties were prominent in the improvement in the list. The market was more active, first hour transactions approximating 200,000 shares.

Anaconda was the most active mining issue, selling at its highest for the year to date. But Utah made the largest gain among coppers. Call money opened at 6 per cent. Foreign exchange rates were lower at the start, demand sterling falling to $3.74¼.

Among strongest issuer were International Paper, Agricultural Chemical, Atlantic Gulf, Baldwin, Chandler, Studebaker, Corn Products, General Electric, Kelly Springfield, Mack, Rubber, Mexican Investment, Texas Coal & Oil, Sears Roebuck and United Fruit. They were up from ½ to more than five points at their forenoon highest. General Electric made the largest gain.

MOVED UPWARD AT ONCE.

Prices were higher at the opening and after a few minutes of hesitation the advance was continued. At the end of an hour the market was still strong, although prices were then a little below the best level. Most of the early activity was in steels, oils and motors. Motors were the strongest of the trio there being some irregularity about the price movement of the other groups. The market lacked snappy features and fluctuations were not wide. Liberty bonds were stronger than before this year. United Fruit sold at its highest since stock dividend day. Studebaker improved and Crucible was also strongest steel. Oils were not so prom nent as usual. The majority of rails were lower at the opening, but rallied, Gugrum had a good start, which was lost. Tobaccos were a reactionary tendency for the latter a little late. Tires and Coppers were selective and developed no definite trend. Several specialties made good gains. General Asphalt sold at its highest since 1918 on the New York Stock Exchange.

TRADERS MADE MARKET.

The market was a professional trading affair all the morning and it is expected to remain such for some time to come, or until there is more improvement in trade and industry to imbue the public with the confidence which seems to be lacking in the investment situation. With the exception of United Fruit, which commanded ¾ premium, borrowing was offered at par before the close of the exchange yesterday was small. Sentiment in general seems to be better as to the future industrial outlook, but not so favorable concerning railroad prospects. Demand for coppers was spotty, shoes and some other essential products is expanding, but rail revenues have not increased to the extent expected. The wage awards have proven a great handicap for transportation corporations, and the chances of any revision are slight. While textile plants look forward to a spring revival, soon it is noted that dividends are being reduced. The day of big profits appears to be over. Indications are stockholders must be content with less, if mill operatives are to submit to wage reductions.

DEMPSEY-CARPENTIER WILL BATTLE IN JULY, SAYS RICKARD

PROMOTER SAYS BIG BOUT ON

Manager of Champion Also Denies Rumor—Both Declare Forfeits Posted

New York, Jan. 19.—Rumors that the Dempsey-Carpentier fight for the world's heavyweight championship had been called off by the promoters were emphatically denied today by Tex Rickard.

"Nothing to it," said Rickard. "The rumor is preposterous."

According to the report in circulation here the promoters called off the match because the boxers had failed to deposit forfeit money in the sum of $50,000 each.

"All forfeits have been posted, according to contract with the Central Union Trust Company here," said Rickard. "I cannot imagine where reports to the contrary came from, but I can say that the terms of the agreement have been lived up to."

According to Rickard the bout will be staged in July. Any idea of staging it in March, as provided for under the contract was given up some time ago.

The promoters have until March 1 to name a site for the battle, and may stage it on any date between May 9th and July 4.

Another report denied the calling off of the bout. Jack Kearns, manager of Dempsey, is quoted as having characterized the rumor as a canard started by jealous persons who hope to make things unpleasant for the principals. Kearns, who is in San Francisco, is said to have made his denial by wire early today.

Kearns claims to have deposited Dempsey's forfeit money in a New York bank three days after the same amount had been posted by Francois Descamps, manager of Carpentier.

According to the story in circulation here, however, Descamps was unable to transfer cash in large amounts from France to this country because of refusal of the French government to permit it though he posted a check for the amount in Paris.

Under the original contract the promoters agreed collectively to post 100,000 in cash, bonds or marketable securities. It is said that the only money that has been posted was $33,333.33 by Charles B. Cochran, the British promoter.

The contract for the big fight is so drawn up that it is said any possibility of legal entanglements that might prevent the promoters from abandoning the match have been removed through the failure of the fighters to deposit their forfeits in any bank.

TWO FEATURE GAMES FOR DORCHESTER FIVES

The Dorchester Centre team will meet a strong opponent in the preliminary contest.

SHARON-STOUGHTON FIVES TO BATTLE

The opening basketball game of what promises to be the most important series staged in Norfolk county this season will take place tomorrow evening in Sharon Town Hall between the Sharon Athletic Club and the fast Stoughton Catholic Club A.A.

FRUZETTI WINS OVER TIPLITZ ON A FOUL

Brockton Boy Seemed on Way to Certain Defeat When Punch Was Landed

By JACK CONWAY.

Jimmy Fruzetti, New England lightweight champion, was saved from what looked like a sure defeat when Joe Tiplitz of Philadelphia fouled him in the second round of their scheduled ten-session whirl at the Armory A. A.'s show at Mechanics Building.

During a wild surge by Tiplitz, the Quaker City youth let drive a left-hand smash which landed low. There was considerable power behind the wallop and Fruzetti ran up the distress signal and went to his corner for first aid treatment.

The boxing commissioner's physician stated that Fruzetti had been hit low. It was then decided that the contest would be continued in five minutes if the New England title-holder was in a fit condition to fight. This information caused Fruzetti to act as if in great pain. Suffice to state that Fruzetti wasn't ready to go on with the mill and was awarded the decision on a foul.

Tiplitz had a slight shade in the opening frame. He forced the going and kept inside of his opponent's left jab most of the time.

Billy Carney Springs the Unexpected

Billy Carney of New Bedford did the unexpected when he walloped out a victory over Mickey Donovan, Brockton welterweight, in the semi-final of ten rounds. In the fifth session, Carney came near winning by a knockout. He dropped Donovan to the mat for the count of nine with a right-hand sock to the jaw. The Brockton man was in a sorry condition when he regained his feet. One solid wallop would have ended the fray right then and there. Carney, however, was a little bit wild in his delivery and failed to get over the winning smash.

Young George Gardner of Lowell didn't give the Brockton delegation anything to cheer over when he disposed of Kid Julian of the Shoe City in eight rounds. Johnny Donovan did better than his brother Mickey when he kayoed Tommy Kanavan of Roxbury in two chapters.

Big Demand for Elks Carnival Seats

There is a large demand for reservations for the monster athletic carnival to be conducted by the Elks at Mechanics Building on the evening of February 3 for the benefit of the Children's Hospital. The affair is open to the public and the fans may secure choice seats by applying at the headquarters of the Boston Lodge of Elks at No. 10 Somerset street.

With four world's boxing champions and Strangler Lewis, world's heavyweight wrestling champion, on hand plenty of high-class competition is expected. Joe Lynch, Benny Leonard, Jack Britton and Johnny Wilson are the ring leaders booked to display their skill. Every other boxer of prominence in the East will also be on hand to aid the good cause.

George Tuohey and Lou Daro have agreed to furnish enough high class wrestling talent to furnish a lively evening of sport. The show is the biggest thing of its kind ever attempted in this city.

Stories of Famous Fights

When Corbett Won the Title

This is the thirteenth of a series of "Finishes of Old-Time Fights," written by authorities on pugilism who were famous in their day. Others will follow.

Today we tell you of the twenty-first round of the Jim Corbett-John L. Sullivan fight. It was in Duffy's Barn, held at New Orleans, Sept. 7, 1892, that Corbett won the heavyweight championship.

By "Macon" McCormick

John came up O. K. again. He led with a weak left. Corbett was watching for an opening. The house was now all Corbett.

John sparred for Jim, but Jim jabbed him as he pleased. Fiercely Corbett fought the almost helpless champion to the ropes and banged him with right and left at will.

Sully fell three times. He tried to get up and fell supinely back again, clearly knocked out.

Blood was pouring from his mouth and nose as he was lifted into his corner.

The champion had given up his laurels and James J. Corbett stood in the centre of the ring, the champion of the world.

He was showered with bouquets, his friends embracing him, and the wildest scene of excitement ever seen in the club enacted.

The time of the fight was one hour and twenty-three minutes.

Corbett had positively not one scratch on him.

As the moments passed and Corbett stood waiting, all eyes were fixed on Sullivan, who lay back in his chair gasping.

In three minutes Sullivan slowly raised himself in his chair and began speaking in his seconds. The crowd could not hear him, and yells of "Sullivan! Speech" rent the air.

Sullivan arose and Corbett crossed quickly over and shook hands with him. Sullivan tried to address the crowd. His voice was very hoarse as he said:

"Gentlemen, all I have to say is that I stayed once too long in the ring, and that I am glad America has so good a champion."

Grand Opera House Bouts Give Promise of All Sorts of Action

There will probably be more rugged action as well as clever wrestling in the bouts at the Grand Opera House tomorrow night than has been seen in one evening in a long time at the famous old theatre. The opening clash brings together two of the get-there-by-any-old-way matmen in Patsy McCarthy and Charley Metro, and judging by the way they are both going it looks as if the canvas will be well scorched before they finish.

In the main event Pinky Gardner and Mark Howard, two of the fastest middleweights in the world and both championship contenders, will meet in a finish match, and in view of Howard's defeat of Ketonen at Worcester the fans are all headed for some brilliant wrestling of the speedy and clever type.

The winner will be sent against Walter Ketonen at a later date.

Providence, R. I., Jan. 13.—Brown University's crack swimming team defeated Springfield Y. M. C. A. College, 46 to 7, in a dual tank meet.

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

Harvard starts its drive for the intercollegiate hockey championship tonight, when, at the Boston Arena, its sextet faces its first American college hockey opponent, the Massachusetts Aggies.

Harvard rides the favorite for the contest, but the Aggie team, made up almost entirely of men who gained their early experience on Greater Boston high school teams, succeeded last week in forcing Dartmouth to play two extra periods before it could win the game, and is confident of reducing the confidence with which Crimson supporters now view Harvard's hockey prospects.

In addition to possessing considerable hockey skill, the Aggie players have shown an abundance of genuine spirit. They never admit they are licked until the final whistle and final score unquestionably proves such to be the case. In last week's game Dartmouth gained and maintained a two-point lead until the second half of the game was well along its course. In the remaining minutes of that period, however, the Aggies tied the score, and kept it tied during the remainder of the regular periods of play, then through one extra period, and were only beaten after a second extra session had been staged.

Canadian Club Team Will Visit Boston

The Shamrocks of Montreal, one of the speediest amateur club teams in all Canada, have been signed by Manager Brown of the Arena for games with the two Boston club teams on Monday and Tuesday evenings of next week.

The A. A. A. will oppose the Canadian team on Monday and the Boston Shoe Trades Club will face the Shamrocks Tuesday, and in both instances fast and skillful hockey scenes assured. The Canadian sextet has been playing the game for the past two months and should have an edge on the locals in the matter of physical condition, when Boston will be in skillful play and manifested only when play is under way.

Dartmouth-B. C. Game Is Promising Match

Such rapid progress has the Boston College team made under the able guidance of Coach Lefty Leader that it is likely to enter tomorrow night's contest with Dartmouth on even terms.

The strength of the Hanover team is not known as fully except through accounts of its games at Hanover. Playing against King's College, the Nova Scotia army that defeated Tech by one point and then lost to Harvard 9 to 1, Dartmouth achieved a 7 to 2 triumph. In that game, however, Winter, who proved the outstanding player for King's in its local games, did not appear in the lineup, and the team probably was not as strong as when it played at the Arena. The Green defeated Amherst 6 to 1 and the Massachusetts Aggies 3 to 2.

Newton Wins on Ice

Newton High defeated Arlington High, 2 to 0, by scoring twice in quick succession.

THE flatfoot of blackjacks and the moans of the merry villagers continue to crowd amateur theatricals and other crime off the front pages.

THE crime torrent culminated in Philadelphia last Friday, when two non-resident members of the Hohenzollern dynasty kidnaped a lion from the Zoo. It's getting to be a corrugated world. The boys would steal the core out of a boil, swipe the hair off the barber shop floor or swindle a malaria patient out of his chills.

YOU can't stagger out of the cellar without having your hair parted with a bouquet of lead pipe or getting a West Virginia massage with a cobblestone.

THE police whistle is a community chorus. Getting lulled to sleep with a homicidal lullaby is childhood's greatest sport. A friendly tap on the mansard roof with a stocking primed with sand or your dad's cane is like being etherized with dynamite. First there is an anaesthetic thump on the toupee that puts you at rest as tenderly as a big Bertha caressing a Belgian cathedral. Then the little cuckoos hatch out of the cranial timbales and ship the finale of the opera "La Clinic." The sensation is luxurious. You feel like a first class passenger on the wreck of Des Imperia. Rocks of oysters jumping over transoms is the next dish on the embossed skull menu and then comes a beautiful lull when you think that Mary Garden is singing you her telephone number.

SMOKING the lead pipe is as soothing as ground glass in consumption. The only drawback is that it leaves you with a lump on your head that you have to buy an extra hat for. It increases your lingual range as you converse in the language of flowers for the next six months.

THE yeggs are slighting nobody. They have rough blackjacks for adults, perfumed blackjacks for ladies and children's sized jacks for the little darlings.

IF you get apanhied with the wrong jack, the polite skullbusters are willing to exchange them. The service is wonderful.

DON'T go back to the farm without having the great seal of the city engraved on your dome, free of cost.

COLD SNAP IS WELCOME TO B. C. COACH

Fred Roque Futting His Hockey Team Through Their Paces at University Heights

A spell of zero weather brings groans from the commuter, but the present cold snap is the cause of joy to Fred Roque, the B. C. hockey coach. Fred's joy concerns a real ice surface at the University Heights rink—a chance for long workouts.

Roque is drilling his squad in passing, stick handling and defensive work. The net guardians are being given much attention. Eddie O'Brien, Tom McCluskey, Luke Urbach, Murphy and Jim Kennedy, former grid star, in turn, are getting a chance to stop the rubber disk.

Either O'Brien or Urban will occupy the net in tomorrow's game with the Big Green seven, according to present indications.

"THE thing to do is to hide until the thing blows over a bit, and they've given you up—and then try to get out of the country, say across into Canada."

They discussed ways and means—with the result that Jennie found herself following almost the same grooves in escaping her great world that she had followed in entering it. Uncle George, who instinctively prepared for emergencies, had brought a traveling bag in the car. Half an hour later Jennie, her veil down, and looking just a limp, inconspicuous child, was standing once again at the desk of that most irreproachable hostelry for maidless women, the Martha Washington, and Uncle George, again in his kindly voice which denoted the deacon, was saying:

"My niece isn't feeling at all well, and a doctor I took her to when we reached town ordered her to stay in bed for several days. I've got to be going on to Boston—so that's why I brought her here, where I knew she'll get the best of attention. I'll send her around some more clothes tomorrow. From what I've heard, you always give the best of care to strangers."

They did—and would. But despite that care, Jennie slept not at all that night. She lay gazing into the darkness of her austere room, thinking, wondering, fearing. What heights she had reached! And what a miserable ending her glory had come to! She wondered what was going to happen next—how it was all coming out. . . .

The next morning, just as on her first morning here five years before, she looked with sickening eagerness at the papers which the maid brought her. There it all was!—forcing the war to share the first-page headlines with her. It was a sensation such as disillusioned and sensation-weary reporters get a chance at only once in every five years or so, and their typewriters had made the most of it. Jennie grasped when she read all the details set down in order and perpetuated in print. Nothing was missed. The daughter of the notorious Black Jerry—the flight to escape punishment for forgery—her long and carefully planned residence as a boarder among the exclusive girls of Braithewood Hall—her marriage—her amazing social success—her complete deception of the socially supreme—and then in the end the truth of the old phrase that blood will tell, with her new incursion into the field of forgery, with the inevitable exposure—and now her second flight to escape justice. It was a wonderful romance!—particularly with the color and interpretation which she knew had dramatized through careful suggestion from Kenneth and Mr. Harrison.

All New York Knew It

Why, all New York knew about her now and were talking about her! What were her high friends saying as they read this story—Mrs. Stillman, the others?

And Sue and Mrs. Harrison? She felt much more sick than Uncle George had represented her to be when she thought about them. They had always been so true and loyal and fine and genuine in their affection! But what were they thinking now?

And she thought of her father, dragged again from his sought-for obscurity into first-page prominence. He had tried so hard to help her, and it was the end of it all!

And the police? She shivered at every sound approaching her room, before such fear as she had as it was not possessed by fear was concerned in Uncle George's plan to get he across into Canada. If she could only get into Canada!

She was thoroughly unnerved and frightened, and she became truly a sick woman, so much so as if she had been prostrated with brain fever; sick with that unnerving and exhausting illness which is a combination of fear, suspense and enforced inactivity.

In feverish glances she looked back upon her glorious past, and what stood out most clearly in was the figure of Kenneth. Cynical, bitter, and frightened, she moved into her pillow against him and against all those in the world he had she had inhabited. She recalled that Kenneth said that Gloria was the one who had exposed her. But how had Gloria learned? From Slim Jackson, undoubtedly. She tried to reason out Slim's motive—but her dullness never satisfied her, and not till long after, and under very different circumstances, did she learn the truth.

The truth was really far from coming if one fully understood Slim's nature. That young gentleman, tingling to make Jennie suffer for her rebuff of him, had with perceiving cunning considered how he could gratify his desire for revenge and also make a profit by the same act. He had thought of telling Kenneth directly. That plan he had dismissed; it might injure Jennie, but it would not help him. Also such direct procedure might lead to unhappy eventualities with Black Jerry. He then had what he considered one of his inspirations. Gloria Raymond! He remembered how Gloria hated Jennie—how Jennie had been the instrument of ending Kenneth's infatuation for Gloria. By telling Gloria, making her to swear to keep the source of her information, and allowing her to have the credit of exposing Jennie to Kenneth, he would be a winner on every count and he would place Gloria under eternal obligations to him. And after Gloria had acted, who knew what might not happen? One thing, though, seemed definite, sometime, somehow, he would collect upon that obligation.

And as Slim had planned, so had he done.

Uncle George had said that Jennie would not hear from him again until his plans were made and it was safe to try to execute them; this might possibly mean weeks. There now followed slow days and nights of this shivering illness which possessed her. Slow days and days while Jennie waited, tossing about her bed, and ignorant of everything except that which she gathered from the daily papers, whereas was going on out in that great world which so lately had been her own. The progress under the annulment of her marriage to Kenneth had been formally instituted. Kenneth went about with the subdued, retiring manner of one who is stricken with public shame. He received much sympathy for his misfortune. There was a quiet meeting between him and Gloria, deftly arranged by Slim Kenneth; despite the notoriety brought upon him by his wife, he was a far more important and promising personage than he had been the Summer before when she had so boldly gone man-hunting for him. At this meeting she easily convinced him that the letter which had caused the breach between them had been just another sample of Jennie's ability as a forger, and that the affair with Slim Jackson had been no more than a bit of foolish girl's Summer nonsense. It became understood between them that as soon as Kenneth was legally free, they were to be married.

Kenneth was mightily pleased at this prospect, despite his father having help him out of his recent predicament, he saw that he was going to need money, and need it badly. Likewise, Slim Jackson learned of this understanding. he was also mightily pleased. Matters were working out as he had hoped they would.

There was no doubt that he would be able to collect—and big!—for Gloria had endless money of her own.

As for Mrs. Harrison and Sue, this generous-hearted mother and daughter were deeply grieved and subdued; a hush had settled upon their lives. Naturally they were not told the truth, and they had to accept what everybody was accepting. And yet, remembering the unaggressive stages by which Jennie had risen, remembering how she had worked, remembering how simple she had always seemed, they could hardly believe what was being circulated as common knowledge. It could hardly seem possible of the Jennie they had known—and yet there were the facts!

Black Jerry Blacker

And during these days while the town still talked of Jennie's exploits and while the police were combing the city and the whole country for her, Black Jerry were a blacker look than ever. He knew such facts as Uncle George had communicated to him, which, of course, were not all. He could hardly hold himself in check. In fact, all that restrained him from violent action was Uncle George's warning that unless Jerry executed the greatest control, he would certainly ruin their chance of getting Jennie across into Canada—which was now the one hope for her that remained to them.

Early in these days of Jennie's hiding an incident took place which, though it was not directly of influence Jennie's action, nevertheless was to intensify the motives of at least one person who identified with her destiny. The day before Jennie had disappeared, Slim Jackson had closed his regular New York season, though it was not to that he had announced that three weeks after closing he would put on a "return" engagement. Two days after the closing, Black Jerry had received by the hand of a messenger a letter written upon the letterhead of the town hotel. The letter was written in a large, sprawling hand, and requested Jerry to call upon the writer at once. It was signed "Doris Dorraine." Jerry was well enough acquainted with the affairs to know who "Doris Dor aine" was. He decided to go, but not knowing what might be afoot he decided it would be well to have a witness. So Uncle George went with him.

Doris Dorraine received them in her pink sitting-room, herself in a pink Summer gown of imported linen. She was a slender, brown blonde, with rings around her eyes —looking rather more tired and sophisticated than a woman who was only twenty-five should look.

"I read what happened to your daughter," she said to Jerry, "and I think I can tell you some things that will interest you."

So much for the call of the snow. Have you heard it?

Scientific Facts Everyone Should Know

By Garrett P. Serviss.

Famous Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Subjects of Popular Interest.

"Will you explain to me: (1) Why a body thrown from a moving train never falls in a straight line; (2) I understand that we shall never see molecules—why? (3) Is is possible to obtain a mixture which, when put in water will remain wherever it is put, whether near the bottom or near the top?—T. M. H., Chicago."

I HAVE answered this question in one form or another many times that I conclude that there is an astonishing amount of ignorance of the simples laws of motion. So, as it is the purpose of these articles to help banish ignorance, I reply once more.

The body thrown from the moving train does not fall in a straight line, i. e., radially toward the centre of gravity, or the centre of the earth's attractive force, because it has to obey more than one impulse to motion at the same time. If the train, carrying the body, were not moving over the ground, the body when dropped would fall straight to the earth, and if thrown horizontally in any direction would not only move in that direction but would also descend toward the ground, thus obeying both impulses at once and combining them also in its actual path of motion. But when the train is in motion, if the body is dropped it cannot fall straight to the ground because it is already in motion just as much as the train is, and the principle of inertia compels it to retain the motion after it has been thrown from the train, and to combine it with the other motion imparted to it by the attraction of gravity which begins to pull it down as soon as it is made free to fall.

The question that it has already does not in the least prevent gravity from acting, but simply combines its own effect with that of gravity, so that the falling takes a direction which is compounded of the horizontal and vertical motions. In other words, it continues to go forward while falling.

(2) I cannot say positively that we shall never be able to see molecules. All that can be said is that we cannot see them with our present means of magnification, and an enormous advance would have to be made with our instruments for aiding vision before molecules could be brought individually within the range of human sight. Molecules of different substances differ greatly in magnitude.

One of the largest molecules known is that of starch. Yet the starch molecule is about 300 times smaller than the smallest particle that the most powerful microscope can render visible. The molecules of air are many times smaller than the starch molecules, their diameter being on an average not more than eight billionths of an inch. Particles not much larger than the starch molecule, however, may be rendered visible indirectly by the instruments called the ultra microscope, in which the particles to be examined are contained in liquids, or transparent solids, or set afloat in air and illuminated by a beam of light which causes them to be surrounded with auréoles that gleam like minute stars. From the size and shape of these mimic stars the actual size of the particles can be calculated.

(3) Yes, it is possible to obtain a mixture that will retain a certain level and form when placed in a liquid. A most interesting example is shown in what is known as Plateau's Experiment, which was once regarded as a practical demonstration of the Laplace theory of the formation of the planets of the solar system. M. Plateau, in Paris, succeeded in making a mixture of alcohol and water having the same density as olive oil.

Into the centre of a vessel filled with this mixture he cautiously introduced a globule of olive oil, which, because of its equality of density with the mixture, was freed from all tendency to either rise or sink, while its particles, owing to their mutual attraction, drew themselves together in the form of a sphere.

Then, by ingenious manipulation, M. Plateau set this sphere of oil in rotation around an axis. Under the action of centrifugal force, rings were separated off from the rotating sphere of oil, and these, as they circled around the parent sphere, successively broke up and shaped themselves into little attendant globes revolving around the sphere as the planets revolve around the sun.

The Adventures of Ann

By Hal Coffman

CHAPTER LXVI.

THERE was much commotion in the house the next morning, trunks, boxes and bags being moved churriedly. As Ann awakened in the beautiful old mahogany bed at first she could not remember where she was, but when she saw the stolid Indian maid of all work quietly sitting by the side of the bed, she remembered it all. The maid fixed her bath, but kept a wary eye on Ann.

"Oh, why won't you allow me to go?" Ann pleaded. "It means nothing to you, and it's everything to me. I will send you much money if you will only help me to get out of here. Won't you?"

But the Indian woman only looked at her and, coming as near a smile as was ever possible with her, said: "I no understand; your bath is ready; we go away to my country on ship tonight; I am glad you go, too."

All day long Ann paced the room, trying to devise some way to escape. The man of the black beard told her her family had been notified, "not to worry; she was safe, but would not be home for some time." Ann reasoned that Betty would phone Mr. Chase, but even then they had nothing definite to work on.

At big closed limousine drew up to the curb early that evening. Before Ann had a chance to cry out she was whisked into it, and it silently glided away toward the steamship dock. As they were hurrying up the gangplank to board the steamer Ann suddenly broke away from Gomez and the man with the black beard and ran to one of the officers of the ship, crying out that she was being kidnaped. They hurried after her, and the woman told the officer, "It's too bad! She is my sister; we are taking her home to care for her. She has these delusions, you know." The officer touched his cap to these distinguished passengers, and Ann was hurried toward the stateroom that had been reserved for her.

"YOU may be sure, Mr. Parr, that I would not be here unless I were prepared to be unwelcome. And what I am going to say to you I have reserved for your ear alone, in the hope that you will take it to heart, while it is not yet too late, and amend your life accordingly."

Eldon Parr stiffened slightly. His look became inscrutable, was riveted on the precipice.

"I shall call your attention first to a man of whom you have probably never heard. He is dead now who threw himself into the river this Summer, with a curse on his lips—I am afraid—a curse against you. A few years ago he lived happily with his wife and child in a little house on the Grade Suburban, and he had several thousand dollars as the result of careful saving and systematic self-denial.

"Perhaps you have never thought of the responsibilities of a great name. This man, like thousands of others in the city, idealized you. He looked up to you as the soul of honor, as a self-made man who by his own unaided efforts—as you yourself have just pointed out—rose from a poor boy to a position of power and trust in the community. He saw you a prominent layman in the Church of God. He was dazzled by the brilliancy of your success, inspired by a civilization which gave such opportunities. He recognized that he himself had not the brains for such an achievement—his hope and love and ambition were centred in his boy."

At the word Eldon Parr's glance was suddenly veiled by pain. He tightened his lips.

"That boy was then of a happy, merry disposition, so the mother says, and every Summer night as she cooked supper she used to hear him laughing as he romped in the yard with his father. When I first saw him this Summer, it was two days before his father committed suicide. The child was lying, stilled with the heat, in the back room of one of those desolate lodging houses in Dalton street, and his little body had almost wasted away.

"While I was there the father came in, and when he saw me he was filled with fury. He despised, the Church, and St. John's above all churches, because you were of it; because you who had given so generously to it had wrecked his life. You had shattered his faith in humanity, his ideal. From a normal, contented man he had deteriorated into a monomaniac whom no one would call at a physical and mental wreck who needed care and nursing. He said he hoped the boy would die.

"And what had happened? The man had bought, with all the money he had in the world, Consolidated Traction. He had bought it solely because of his admiration for your ability, his faith in your name. It was inconceivable to him that a man of your standing, a public benefactor, a supporter of church and charities, would permit your name to be connected with any enterprise that was not sound and just. Thousands like Garvin lost all they had, while you are still a rich man. It is further asserted that you sold out all your stock at a high price, with the exception of a few shares to leading lines, which are guaranteed heavy dividends."

"Have you finished?" demanded Eldon Parr.

"Not quite, on this subject," replied the rector. "Two nights ago this man threw himself in the river. His body was pulled out by men on a tugboat, and his worthless coat contained not a cent in his pocket. It is now in the possession of Mr. Horace Bentley. Thanks to Mr. Bentley, the widow found a temporary home, and the child has almost recovered."

Hodder paused. His interest had suddenly become concentrated upon the banker's new demeanour, and he would not have thought it within the range of possibility that a man could betray by a revelation concerning himself without the betrayal of some feeling. But so it was. Eldon Parr had been coldly attentive, save for the one scarcely perceptible tremor when his boy was mentioned. His interrogatory gesture gave the very touch of perfection to this attitude, since it proclaimed him to have listened patiently to what was so preposterous that a less reasonable man would have cut it short.

"And what, may I ask, suppose," he inquired, "that I am responsible in this matter? What leads you to infer that the Consolidated Traction Company was not organised in good faith? Do you think that business men are always infallible? The street-car lines in this city were at sixes and sevens, fighting each other; money was being wasted by poor judgment. The idea behind the company was a public-spirited one, to give the citizens cheaper and better service, by a more modern equipment, by a wider system of transfer. It seems to me, Mr. Hodder, that you put yourself in a more quixotic position than the so-called reformers when you assume that the men who organize a company in good faith are personally responsible for every share of stock that is sold, and for the welfare of every individual who may buy the stock."

The Second Generation

AN ABSORBING STORY OF UP-TO-DATE AMERICA

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

Author of Many Novels and One of the Country's Best-Known Short Story Writers

CHAPTER XLII.

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

WHEN Mortimer Lawrence returned to New York he left consternation in the Newport cottage his family had taken for the Summer.

Perhaps his sister would have felt a great satisfaction had she known how uncomfortable her brother was.

It was true, as he had said to Mary, that he had seen Peter Throckmorton and had had a talk with him. The nature of that talk he had not divulged. For in it Peter had confided to his friend that he was losing heavily on the race-track; that within the past week the luck that had been his had turned against him and that he must get more funds from his father.

"Do your mother and sister know of this?" Mortimer had asked.

"No," Peter had shaken his head nervously. "And Mary is another of the things that bother me. I met that cad, Sheldon, ten days ago. He told me then that Mary and Mother were acting him on to Newport to a big dance that's to come off next Saturday night—asking him two weeks ahead, so he was sure to have no engagement. I can't believe it, Mort. I can't believe that Molly cares a dare for Sheldon beyond having fun with him. But I wish I knew."

He stared as his friend remarked curtly, "Perhaps I'll take a run on to Newport and give the place and people the once over."

"Gee! I wish you would—and see what Molly's up to! Not that it will affect me much one way or the other, but I hate Sheldon to be hanging around my sister. I tell you, this last fortnight's been the devil! Theo's away, my luck has all turned against me—and everything!"

"I wish," his friend said thoughtfully, "that I could lend you the cash you need, Pete. But the sum's beyond me. Just now our business is not doing well—and father"—

Peter interrupted him, "I would not touch a cent of your money. No, God's worth his millions. Let him come across!"

But Mortimer had failed in his object in going to Newport. To himself he admitted that his love for Mary had moved him to take the trip. Now he was more in the dark than ever.

In a Quandary

He did not trust his sister's assertions—yet she would not have dared report words that Sheldon had never uttered. And Sheldon's air of proprietorship gave color to her statements.

Lawrence slept little the night after his conversation with his mother and sister, and at his solitary breakfast the next morning with a heavy heart.

Mary had said she would sleep until noon, so there was no chance of seeing her. The day was dismal and foggy, with a mist rolling in from the sea. When he strolled over to the hotel at which the Throckmorton were staying, he caught a glimpse of Lewis Sheldon loitering in the lobby. He reminded Mortimer of a spider lying in wait for a fly.

Mortimer Lawrence must return to New York at the time appointed. He had said truly that his father was neglecting his business. The son hoped to avert a smash-up. Under no circumstances, perhaps he had no right to tell Mary Throckmorton that he loved her. Nevertheless, he had come to Newport with the intention of doing this.

He had pretended that he had wished to allay Peter's anxiety. He had really come to set his own fears at rest.

The few minutes' talk he had had with Mary last night convinced Mortimer that he loved her even better than he had known. He could not be happy without her. Yet everything seemed to fight against him.

There was Sheldon; there was his father's business affairs; there was Mary's memory.

For, of course, he would marry no girl until he had a sufficient income of his own.

Least of all there was his family's opposition to his attentions to the daughter of Rufus Throckmorton. But this he would not consider. He would marry the girl he loved in spite of all the relatives in the world.

Always supposing she would accept him. For one delicious moment last night he had fancied that he might win her. Then a cloud had blotted out this ray of light.

Mary Has a Scheme.

There was nothing to do but return to New York and await the end of the season. Fortunately, the Summer was nearly over. He hated this Summer almost as much as poor Peter did.

Before he took his departure, he bought a mass of flowers and directed that they be sent with his card to Miss Throckmorton.

"But not until one o'clock," he ordered.

If Mary were sleeping, he would not have her disturbed. She had looked pitifully tired last night.

But at this very moment Mary was wide awake and telling her mother of a scheme she had evolved during the sleepless hours of the early morning.

"I am going to give a select dinner here at the hotel," she announced. "I shall call it 'an informal affair' and fill up at the last moment,' for I will have it next Thursday. But it will be the most elaborate function I can plan in that time.

"I mean to shew the Smart Set how Westerners can entertain. You must telegraph on to Dad about it today, Mother. For it is going to cost an awful lot."

"Oh, Mary!" her mother protested. "Why will you do such things?"

"Because I mean to leave here in a blaze of glory. I shall have a small number of guests—only about twenty. But it will be some affair!

"And,—listen, Mother!—Mrs. Lawrence and her daughter are not going to be invited!"

Making the Home Artistic

By Loretta C. Lynch

An Acknowledged Authority on All Matters Pertaining to Home-hold Management.

"SHALL I hang curtains in my new home?" a little bride writes me. Seems she has been reading that curtains are unsanitary and gather dust and germs. But have you ever stopped to think that such dread places our homes would be if we dispensed with the things that go to make artistic attire for the home in Winter?

To tack a heavy bit of curtain material around the sink and drain board in the kitchen is highly inappropriate. It hides dirt. And dirt hidden from view is usually not removed. Moreover the fresh air and sometimes the sunshine that might get into the damp places of the sink, does not get a chance to help in the work of disinfection. But when it comes to the living room, the matter of curtains and portières is different.

And so, of course, the little bride will hang curtains—the most artistic, beautiful ones she can afford to buy and which are at the same time in keeping with the rest of her furnishings. For instance, a room with beautiful mahogany or oaken furniture might appropriately have panelled curtains of rare old point d'Alençon lace set into voile. And a room of this type may have embossed silken drapes. But when the furniture is of the sturdy, sombre mission type, such curtains would be inappropriate—even ridiculous.

Casement cloth in any of the rich golden tones might be used for drapes with mission furniture and any of the plain or near plain nets in cream or ecru would be appropriate curtaining.

Yet, putting the home into Winter attire frequently causes much needless upset, to the great annoyance of the men folk, who, as a rule, work very hard during the day and are entitled to a quiet, peaceful atmosphere when they return home in the evening. But to do all the work entailed in putting the home into its Winter attire without causing undue upsetting the housewife must have a definite plan.

First, do not undertake too much in the way of housecleaning or curtain hanging in any one day. Plan a minimum amount of work and try not to accomplish much more than you plan. During the housecleaning time it is wise to prepare one food, such as boiled ham, that may be eaten in various forms without much further preparation. Then list what you want to do in each room day by day.

In getting the curtains in each room will need going over. A soft cloth wound about the broom will help in the cleaning down the walls. This cloth should be shaken out frequently, for if the dirt remains in it, the clean parts of the walls may become soiled by its use. Of course, if you own or rent a vacuum cleaner the problem is an easy one. There is an attachment for this purpose.

All woodwork should be thoroughly cleansed. To wash painted woodwork or walls, provide two pans of lukewarm water, some whiting—not whitening—purchasable at any grocery shop, and three clean, soft cloths, preferably woolen, will be needed. Take a little whiting on a damp cloth and rub it over the surface to be cleaned. Take care not to allow drops of water to trickle down the paint. Wash off with a second cloth and clean water. Wipe dry with a third cloth. Do a little at a time, keeping the clean part dry before going on.

Stingiest Person

One dollar will be paid for every letter printed.

Editor Boston American:

Dear Sir—This "stingy" story is absolutely true. Affidavits can be furnished if desired. Two men were shooting from a boat on a Maine lake. One of the men held the gun, the property of the other. The owner of the weapon fell overboard. Dropping the weapon hastily into the water, the second man proceeded to rescue the first, and managed to save his life. Sometime later the rescued man sent a bill to the rescuer for the gun which had been lost.

Rules Governing Movie Actor Identity Test

The Boston American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser's new Moving Picture Players' Identification Test is a test of skill and judgment open to all readers of the Boston American and Boston Sunday Advertiser, irrespective of age, living in any city or town in New England or Canada.

Two hundred and nineteen cash awards will be given by these two newspapers to their readers who submit the largest percentage of correct identifications to the 120 pictures to be published in these two newspapers.

All employes of the Boston American, the Boston Sunday Advertiser, and their families, and all moving picture players and persons connected with the moving picture industry are absolutely barred from participating in the awards.

The Test will consist of 120 pictures of favorite moving picture players, to be printed two each day, in the Boston American and Boston Sunday Advertiser, first picture Sunday, December 19, 1920.

Participation in any other contest which has been run, which is now running or which shall be run by the Boston American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser will not debar anyone from entering this Test.

Every participant or any or all members of a family will be allowed to submit one set of pictures, but each set must contain only ONE identification to each picture, and no participant shall be entitled to more than one award, and not more than one award shall be given in any one family.

Each and every identification must be neatly written or printed on the coupon furnished by the Boston American or Boston Sunday Advertiser or on a piece of some book form by itself, accompanied either by the picture furnished by the Boston American or Boston Sunday Advertiser, or a pen or pencil copy thereof, and must have the name, residence, etc., of the participant on each identification blank.

Do not send your identification in "list" form, i. e., do not write identifications under one another on a piece of paper.

In case there are no complete sets of correct identifications, awards will be given to the persons submitting the largest percentage of correct identifications.

In case of a tie awards will be made on the basis of neatness, judgment and exact accuracy in spelling, but if the tie cannot be decided in that way, the tied participants will receive similar awards.

Under no circumstances should participants send in their identifications before the end of the Test, as any sent in before the last picture is printed will not be considered. KEEP your identifications from day to day and at the end of the Test arrange them in numerical order and then send them in all together at one time.

Time will not be a factor in making the awards. The first identifications sent in after the Test closes will stand no better than the last submitted.

All identifications must be delivered to the Boston American Movie Test Headquarters, at No. 30 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass., either by mail or in person within specified time limit, which will be announced later.

All envelopes or packages containing identifications must be plainly addressed as follows: "Movie Test Editor, No. 30 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass., P. O. Box 220," and each envelope or package must bear the name and address of the sender legibly written or stamped on the upper left-hand corner.

As all identifications will contain written or printed matter, if mailed, it is absolutely necessary that the package be fully stamped at postal letter rates, as mail of this character does do the postoffice as first class matter. The Boston American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser reserve the right to refuse to consider any sets of identifications on which charges for postal delivery are not fully prepaid.

Participants who desire further information should address their inquiries to the Movie Test Editor, No. 30 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass. Questions will be answered, as far as possible, through the columns of the Boston American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser. If participants desire personal replies, they should enclose sufficient postage for such reply, or they may phone Main 2100 or call in person.

The Boston American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser reserves the right to make any change in, or addition to, these conditions that may be deemed necessary for fairly and properly conducting the Test, and the decision of the Boston American Movie Test Editor on any question which may arise will be absolutely final, and the entering of any participant is a complete acceptance of all conditions now made or to be made.

WE DON'T BLAME HER—Miss Albertina Bachmann has invented a new way to learn the multiplication table. If you want to find out what 6x6 equals, find "6" at the side of the board and "4" at the top. KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—the first sign of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent. of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, prescribed a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c and 30c.

As Harmony Saw Canadian Club Guests

That the friendship existing between the United States, Great Britain and Canada must be continued for the sake of civilization was the keynote of addresses before the Canadian Club of Boston, at a smoker held at the Boston City Club.

More than 500 members and guests were present at the banquet at which William C. Crawford officiated as toastmaster, President Freeman I. Davison called the meeting to order.

"Our countries should stand together for all the principles for which we stand," said Colonel E. M. McDonald, former member of Parliament for Pictou County, N. S.

International friendship among all nations was urged by the Rev. Paul Revere Frothingham. "I hope that we may outgrow the old ideal that to love our country we must dislike other countries," he said.

Other speakers were John N. Cole, chairman of the Public Works Department; George William Bentley, James W. Myrick and Dr. A. R. Sawyer, president of the McGill Alumni of New England.

Boston's Shipping Facilities Sadly Neglected

Charles F. Dutch, admiralty counsel and general counsel for the Shipping Board in Boston, spoke at the Old South Meeting House Forum recently. What he said is not very cheering to the people of Boston or very complimentary.

He declared that our shipping activity in Boston was "in sad contrast" with the activities of other ports less favorably circumstanced than the port of Boston. He told his audience that although Boston was one day nearer to England than either Philadelphia, New York or Baltimore, and therefore two days nearer by round trip, yet New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore were outstripping us in trade with the world's greatest maritime nation. He said that Boston was using only 30 or 40 per cent. of her shipping facilities.

This largely comes from what George S. Smith, former president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, told the Boston American the other day. We get up schemes, have dinners, talk, pass resolutions and then go home and "let George do it." The citizens of Boston bent on co-operation for the civic development of their city remind us very much of the anarchists in London, who hold mass meetings in Hyde Park, denounce the monarchy, hang the King and the Prime Minister in their speeches, abolish Parliament and then dissolve and go home happy. Only we start our revolutions at dinners.

Why Not Look to the Future as Well as the Past

A clergyman, who thinks that these are days when we should keep citizens of Boston remindful of what Boston has contributed to the world, writes to us the following:

Boston and its vicinity may be well proud of having given to the world a number of surgeons and physicians, who have made disease and suffering less.

Zadiel Boylston of Boston, who made the first inoculation of smallpox in this country upon his own son, and for his advocacy of this first attempt at preventative medicine, was vilified and had to secret himself in his own house for fifteen days to prevent being lynched.

Dr. Benjamin Waterhouse, who made the inoculation of cowpox upon his four children and later exposed them to smallpox to prove the efficacy of his virus.

Dr. J. M. Morton and Dr. John C. Warren, who first used ether as an anaesthetic in this country or any other.

Dr. Henry J. Bigelow, for his great surgical work.

All these came from Boston and vicinity, and the world will never tire of talking about what they have done for suffering humanity. Boom Boston!

Remarkable as these honors are, Boston can boast of more—a great deal more. But the mill is never turned by the waters that have passed. Wake up, Boston!

State Department Pinheads Assume Passport Control

Senator David I. Walsh has thrown down the gauntlet to the State Department concerning the practice of refusing to our citizens the right to leave this country when they please. It is high time that somebody took up this serious situation.

It is actually a fact, shameful to the self-respect and the alleged freedom of the American people, that the pinheads, upstarts, puppets that infest the State Department undertake to say when Americans shall go abroad.

From the beginning of time the bondage of man to the land, the limitation of his right to travel, has been a badge of slavery. The last vestige of it in this world disappeared forty years ago when the serfs were freed in Russia.

The case which aroused the wrath of Senator Walsh, if the newspaper reports are true, is a typical case. A Presbyterian clergyman named Thomas, of New York, a member of the Villard Committee investigating the atrocities in Ireland, was denied his passport to Ireland by the State Department because some unknown whipper-snapper in the State Department did not like the alleged "radical activities" of this clergyman. No wonder the Senator, who is a real Democrat and a man who understands liberty and the right of free citizens, was stirred to wrath by this performance. That the State Department knows full well the outrageous nature of its presumption appears clear from what Senator Walsh denounces as the "evasive and unsatisfactory" character of its explanations.

Senator Walsh proposes the appointment of a board of three to investigate the extent of the State Department's encroachment upon the freedom of our citizens to travel abroad. Business men have been handicapped right and left by this wretched, incompetent, arrogant department, probably the worst in the world. Imagine a free country in which its citizens must make their opinions conform to the opinions of a lot of anonymous upstarts in the State Department or be bound like serfs to the soil!

All this is but the corollary of the right exercised by our executive to deport men whose presence here is distasteful to the political views of the President or some of his boot-lickers. The deportation of Mr. Martens, the representative of the Russian government in this country, for no other reason than that the President does not like the leaders of the Russian government, for whom it is reported the President has a curious jealousy on account of the secret respect which the statesmen of Europe entertain for Lenin, even though they dislike and fear what he is trying to do for his people in Russia, is an example.

More than 5,000 American engineers and other technicians and skilled men in the American industrial world have given Mr. Martens their names and addresses and expressed a desire to go to Russia, where there is a world of natural resources for skilled industrial leaders to conquer, and a rank and file of 200,000,000 virile but tractable white people, enjoying a vigorous climate, ready to be led in the greatest crusade against unexploited nature which humanity has seen since the opening up of our great West.

These 5,000 Americans could build up conditions in Russia that would keep America prosperous for generations, just as the opening of our West made England prosperous. But are they to be bound down to the soil here like the miserable serfs in the Dark Ages merely because President Wilson does not want, while Lenin's government flourishes, two blades of grass to grow in Russia where only one grew before?

The dangerous exercise of this power to expel or lock up people in this country becomes more apparent now that the Anglo-Irishes have demanded the deportation of Mr. Boland, secretary to President De Valera of the Irish Republic.

More Truth Than Poetry

The Deluded Cobbler

By S. E. KISER

JOHN STRUTHERS lives in a little town
Where the days are all very much alike;
Out there the people are never shot down;
There are no parades, there's never a strike.
The railroad's nearly three miles away,
The town has been sleeping for sixty years,
But it wakes for a minute or two per day
When the man who carries the mail appears.

YOU may see old John if you journey there,
Where he wields his hammer and plies his awl;
He mends the shoes that the people wear,
His hair is gray and his guins are small.
I have watched him, after a job was done,
Squinting with pride at a simple patch—
Viewing the stitches, one by one,
With a frank conceit that you couldn't match.

IN his little shop with its open door
He pegs and sews, and the children try,
With shreds of leather picked from the floor,
To fashion things that will please his eye.
And they mix his lasts and mislay his wax,
And refuse to mind when he shakes his head,
And they look with wonder that wisdom lacks
When he puts a bristle upon a thread.

THEY ask him questions that tax his wit,
There are silly stories they make him tell—
Stories of places where fairies flit,
And mighty caverns where giants dwell—
And often his work is delayed because
The children wilfully interfere,
Climbing his knees and making him pause
To tell the tales that they wish to hear.

AWAY out there in the little town,
Where life is a cheerless and drab affair,
Never expecting to claim renown,
He mends the shoes that the people wear.
With waxy fingers he works away
Beside a door that is seldom shut.
Thus he will toil till his dying day,
And he thinks he is happy, the poor old nut!

LUCKY BOYS

Why be sorry for the people who have been losing so heavily because of the collapse in the stock market? Think of the losses they are going to be able to charge off when they make out their income tax reports.

Letters to the Editor

Praises Beauty Contest

Editor Boston American:

Dear Sir—The interest in your Beauty Contest seems to have been rather wide-sweeping, and, as an onlooker, I have heard so much said concerning the fairness of your decisions in the awarding of the prizes that I think it can do no harm to pass some of the pleasantness on to you. I am voicing not only my own opinion, but that of Springfield's general public when I say that your paper has been highly complimented on its fairness and unbiased judgment.

You are very unlike a certain Boston paper which makes the awarding of its prizes a matter of geography. I have heard it remarked that the above-mentioned paper would condone a sovereign disregard for rhyme and meter, and even look with high favor on the splitting of an infinitive, providing the contributor hailed from East Boston, Dorchester or Quincy.

Until I had heard so much said in favor of your decisions, I had not read the Boston American. I do so now, and enjoy it.

I trust when you will have recovered from the effects of your Beauty Contest that you will interest your readers with another contest, only—don't confine it to beauty, as I should rather like to enter in. A NEW ENGLANDER.

Springfield.

What Washington Said

Editor Boston American:

Dear Sir—"Arbitrary power is most easily established on the ruins of liberty abused to licentiousness."

To whom will we credit the above quotation, which applies so aptly to Ireland's present condition? To De Valera or any defender of the Irish cause? No; to George Washington, as he is credited with it on a bulletin board displayed on the lawn of the First Congregational Church (Unitarian), Centre street, Jamaica Plain.

Wants Widows' Club

Editor Boston American:

Dear Sir—Reading in your great paper a short while ago about a social club for Widows and Widowers out West, why not one in Boston. I'm sure it would meet with great response and would be a congenial place for those who are lonesome. Yours hopefully,

J. H.

IT HAD snowed.
AND THEN rained.
AND THERE wasslush.
AND RUNNING gutters.
AND I.
UP IN my window.
DREAMILY WAITING.
FOR MY idle mint.
TO SUGGEST a theme.
ON WHICH to write.
WAS VERY glad.
I MIGHT stay in.
ON SUCH a day.
AND SO I sat.
AND ON the street.
THE CHILDREN came.
FROM SCHOOL let out.
AND HURRIED on.
AND ALL had come,
EXCEPTING ONE.
A LITTLE boy.
WHO LIVES next door.
ON OUR third floor.
AND HE just moped.
AND LOOKED in cans.
AND AREAWAYS.
AND HELD his face.
UP TO the rain.
AND AT the curb.

SEEMED NOT to know.
IF IT were best.
TO BRAVE the stream.
THAT WIDENED there.
OR WALK six feet.
OR THEREABOUT.
TO WHERE his legs.
THOUGH VERY short.
MIGHT PUT him safe.
BEYOND THE stream.
AND THERE he stood.
AND SURVEYED long.
AND THEN stepped out.
TO ANKLE depth.
IN RUNNING slush.
AND DIDN'T even.
LIFT HIS feet.
BUT JUST plowed through.
AND CAME on home.
AND WHAT he told.
WHEN HE got there.
I'LL NEVER know.
EXCEPT HIS mother.
TOLD MY wife.
IT WAS a terrible day.
AND HER little boy,
Willie.
WAS WET right through.
WHEN HE got home.

I THANK you.

Impertinence

"ALL I ask is love," she sang.
And then a woman rose.
As women who are jealous will,
To shout in accents that were shrill:
"You'd better ask for cle'a."

PETTICOATS DOMINATE ALL AGES OF MAN

By DAMON RUNYON

Copyright, 1921, by Star Company.

FROM the time he is born until he dies, the average man is to a greater or less extent under petticoat government, and dependent on women.

In these days we have lady undertakers, so not infrequently he has to depend upon a woman to safely stow away his mortal clay. Thus he does not escape the flutter of skirts even after he is cut off from the breath of life.

When he comes squalling into the world there is bound to be a lot of women around, mother—of course—grandmothers, aunts. For years his sphere is bounded entirely by dresses; he is subject to female bossing, and is wholly dependent upon women for everything.

He is dependent on them for his food, for his dressing, for his exercise, for the very air he breathes. If his mother isn't bossing him, his nurse, or the hired girl takes a shy at him. Then his sisters have something to say, also the grandmothers and aunts, aforesaid, not to mention female cousins.

By and by, when he gets old enough to go to kindergarten, he finds more women to boss him, and upon whom he is dependent for his teaching. When he gets still a little older, and goes to grammar school, more women, again.

He does not escape them through all the days of his youth. If he goes to Sunday school, there they are. If he wants a little snack of something to eat, he has to beg it of the cook, a woman. The cleanliness of his apparel depends upon a woman.

He dodges them for a brief spell when he goes away to college, only to fall in love with some co-ed, and submit to her bossing. He is dependent upon her for company, for dancing and for foolish conversation. Maybe he marries her—or someone else—and then he is a vassal and a dependent of the petticoat regime the rest of his days.

Every man likes to think he is doing the bossing, of course, but in nine cases out of ten he is obeying the dictums of a woman, clever enough to make him do as she desires while thinking he is following his own ideas.

If he remains a bachelor, he is generally dependent upon a housekeeper, or certainly upon a maid to keep his rooms in order. If he gets sick, he has to have a nurse, and the nurse is a woman. There he lies, flat on his back, subservient, and even servile to petticoat rule.

If he steps into a telephone booth to telephone a friend, he is dependent upon a woman getting his call through. If he enters an elevator, he is often dependent nowadays upon a woman getting him to his floor.

If he goes away to war thinking he is sure to escape women on the battle front, he finds them in the canteens, in the hospitals, and sometimes even in the trenches. If he is a business man, he finds himself dependent upon a woman to attend to his correspondence. If he is a laborer, he not infrequently is dependent upon a woman getting him on the pay roll in proper order.

If he is a politician nowadays he is dependent upon the women for votes and subject at all times to their fightsand whims. You can not afford, in politics, to offend the women voters.

In fact, when you come to think of it, a man is dependent upon a woman in some manner nearly every hour of the day.

Not that I object to it. I am merely stating the facts. The more I contemplate the situation, the more I am struck by the absolute necessity for women in this world. If you removed them all, the men would be in a most distressing case indeed.

Stars and Stripes

The man who borrows trouble is generally very liberal with it.

Tears of remorse are always too late to quench the fires of passion.

Good books are the last wills and testaments of the great, making all men the legal heirs of genius.

The pearl is least appreciated by the oyster that begot it.

Men would not hate the law so much if they did not break it first.

Even the most timid can sit on the topmost branch of a tree when it is down.

To the spendthrift the eagle on the silver dollar is a bird of mighty wings; to the miser, a bird of powerful claws.

Those of us who are so upright that we lean over backwards, cannot see where we are going, and naturally tread on the rights of others.

GOOD TIME COMING IS PICTURED FOR US

By Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton

Pastor Calvary Baptist Church, New York City

AT such a time as this, when there is so much vice and crime abroad in the world, we need to reassure ourselves with the inspiring thought that these things will not always be so.

There is a good time coming. The human race has always dreamed of "A Golden Age." Plato, in his "Republic," Sir Thomas More, in his "Utopia," and many other high dreamers of the race have endeavored to picture for us the conditions which must prevail in the ideal state.

But the Bible has given us the only authoritative presentation of this great theme. It teaches that the devil—the great deceiver and enemy of mankind—is finally to be driven out from the walks of man forever, and that there will be "a new heaven and a new earth wherein dwelleth righteousness.

Crime Conquered

And with this elimination of the devil from the affairs of earth, all the sin and suffering and sorrow which he caused will disappear. Every plague spot of vice and infamy will be blotted out; all the marshes and bogs of crime, all the gambling dens and drinking hells, and brothels, and haunts of shame, all the loathsome pest holes of hideous disease, done away forever.

All the depraved cabinets and the vainglorious courts and the self-seeking legislatures of the world adjourned. All rotten rulers and corrupt public officials, who use their offices for private gain through public plunder and to serve the advancement of their own political fortunes, banished in utter disgrace from before the children of men. All the cannon melted into church bells and the swords beaten into reaping hooks. All the emptiness and vanity which now characterize social life exploded and true brotherhood and human sympathy smiling in their stead.

Swindlers Sidetracked

All the cheats and swindlers, and bogus goods, and frauds, and dishonest advertising and wooden nutmegs and half-cotton "wool" and watered milk and pasteboard leather, and excelsior breakfast foods and wildcat stocks and inflated securities sent into eternal limbo. All the padded forms and painted cheeks and blondined hair and false teeth and bustles and "rats" and paste pearls and glass diamonds seen no more! Yes, all the awful sins that we now have to read and see, and wear, and even eat, banished—and truth, in its simplicity and beauty, established forever.

All the selfish and infamous cliques and combinations and rings—political rings, and whiskey rings, and vice rings, and society rings, and railroad rings, and mercantile rings, and bankers' rings, and labor rings, and building contracting rings, and walking delegate rings, and dancing master rings, and bolshevistic rings—yes, and preacher rings—and a thousand other rings—broken up, and in their place fraternity, love and sweet fellowship established!

Every jail emptied out, every penitentiary in the hands of a receiver, every law court closed, every judge given a permanent vacation, all the forces that have to drive and restrain and coerce the sons of men, and all those who work iniquity in any form, putting through rotten laws, crippling honest industry, corrupting the press, exploiting the poor—whatsoever maketh iniquity or worketh a lie—ended by the power of the Almighty, and a clean, honest, healthy, pure-minded, straight-limbed, red-blooded, home-loving, woman-honoring, God-fearing race of men walking in the midst of a redeemed creation, lighted with beauty and blessed by the smile of an approving God!

Perfect Flower of Humanity

All that is moves to some climax of self-expression. We see a root in the mud at the bottom of a lake, but there is no meaning in that alone. Then from that root we see a stem reaching up through the darkness of the water and groping toward the light, but there is no meaning in that alone. Then we see a leaf spread upon the bosom of the lake, but there is no meaning in that alone. But pass that spot another day, and you will find there one of heaven's jewels, as lovely as an angel's dream. There you will find a water lily, with leaf of snow and heart of gold, wooed by the winds and kissed by the waves, and exhaling its sweet perfume to the breeze. Then the meaning of root and stem and leaf becomes plain.

Surely, our poor old humanity is moving to some better goal than we have yet attained!
